Rambler Price Action Discussed

Commenting on American Motors' recent strong price action, George Romney, president of American Motors, said:

"American Motors' progress sharing program as reflected in our new labor contract and reduced Rambler prices is the key to building a stronger competitive position and a stronger future earnings position in the automobile industry."

"Rambler's success has placed us in a position to capitalize on it by steps that will increase our sales volume and increase our earnings even faster. It is the combination of progress by sharing it with customers and workers as well as with dealers and suppliers that accelerates progress to the benefit of stockholders."

"Our price action is based on the opportunity we have at the present time to take another big step forward in expanding Rambler's portion of the car market. Our concentrated output in low cost, largely depreciated but highly efficient facilities gives us favorable cost position and a high earnings ratio as volume increases beyond present levels.

"We have carefully developed our 1967 model program to offer customers better value in terms of product and price in the economy, middle size or all purpose, and luxury models—models that will soon be outselling previous standard volume leaders."

"Our sales, merchandising and advertising programs are geared up to push ahead even faster than the rate that has carried Rambler into third place in the industry for the current calendar year on the basis of the latest official registration figures for the first eight months through August."

"Not only is this the way to corporate success, but it is the way to reverse the wage-price spiral to the extent possible under present laws. Of course, correcting national economic policy is the only fully effective method of accomplishing this desirable and vital objective."
