Jail Terms, License Suspensions Await Drinking Motorists

Torrance area law enforcement officers and judges warned Friday that they would observe a "get tough" policy on drinking and reckless drivers over the New Year holiday.

Judges at South Bay Municipal Court stated that penalties of 180 days license suspension, fines and jail terms awaited motorists convicted of drinking and driving over the period, which traditionally is marred with traffic injuries, deaths and property destruction.

Police officers will be on the lookout for the slightest sign of erratic behavior behind the wheel and promised that any drinking drivers may expect to spend a night in jail if arrested.

It was noted that the year's record of traffic fatalities has been exceptionally low and that the "get tough" attitude will be aimed at keeping it that way.

The strict enforcement of penalties for drunken drivers was credited by one jurist as being responsible for the low accident rate thus far during the Christmas-New Year holiday.

Local law enforcement agencies did not rule out the possibility of establishing road blocks and check points for traffic over the weekend.

Young Writer Sells Story to Magazine

SHS Student's Story Slated for May Publication

Richard Vogl, a senior at South High School, has received word that his short story, "The Bald and the Beautiful" will appear in Datebook, a national magazine for teens.

The story, published last year in South High's literary magazine, "Analecta," was selected for a final award by the staff of Datebook in their Reader Prize Story competition. It will appear in the May, 1962 issue of the magazine.

The youth is a member of the creative writing class at South and plans to enter more of his writing in national student writing competitions as well as in professionally published magazines.

Next to Datebook's check, the young writer is justifiably proud of his three gold medals in National Forensic League competition; his work in dramatics with the Thespians of South High; and his presidency of Service Club. On January 6 he is entering a speech contest at the University of Southern California, hoping to qualify for state competitions.

STUDY MANUSCRIPT — Richard Vogl, whose short story "The Bald and the Beautiful," has been purchased by a national teenage magazine, here looks over the manuscript of the story with Susie Schenk, president of the South High School student body. Vogl is a student at the local high school.

RUSH OF ACCIDENTS—Local police officers are looking forward in despair to the traditional rush of injury and property damage accidents which take place over each New Year holiday. Three day weekend is expected to be filled with accidents despite "get tough" policies promised by law enforcement agencies and by local municipal court judges. Severe penalties have been promised drivers convicted of drinking and driving charges.
