"POLICY OF TITLE INSURANCE"

To assure a buyer that he will receive a good and marketable title to the property he is purchasing, a Policy of Title Insurance is issued. This policy includes the investigation of innumerable public records which would uncover any condition that might render a title defective.

Among the risks covered in an Owners Standard Coverage Policy are: lack of capacity of parties such as minor, incompetents and forgers; lack of authority of parties such as agents, corporations and fiduciaries; lack of delivery of instruments of title; and most matters disclosed by public records.

To meet the demands of non-resident lenders who could not personally inspect the premises, the so-called "A.T.A." policy was devised. It expands the risks normally insured against under the standard policy to include unrecorded physical easements, water and mineral rights and the rights of parties in possession such as tenants and buyers under unrecorded instruments.

Risks are not normally insured against under any type of policy are zoning regulations and defects actually known to the insured at the time the policy was issued, but not disclosed to the title company.

Policies of Title Insurance are now almost universally used in California, largely in the standardized forms prepared by the California Land Title Association. It is customary in Southern California for the seller to pay for the Owners Standard Coverage Policy (the charges based on the price of the home), and the buyer to pay for the "A.T.A." policy.
