

Mother, Baby Care Clinic Held Sept. 5

Expectant parents in the Redondo and Manhattan Beach areas who attend Red Cross Mother and Baby Care classes tend to be young (20 to 25), in the professions and less than three months away from being parents.

A survey conducted by Red Cross on students from Torrance, Redondo, Manhattan and Hermosa Beach areas over a 12-month period drew responses from 128 students including 49 couples. Of those surveyed 70 were expecting their first child and five were adoptive parents.

In occupational categories engineers and their wives outnumbered others. Among the women students the majority listed themselves as housewives although a number indicated they had recently been secretaries.

Nearly all visited their doctors early in pregnancy and many had learned of the Red Cross course from their doctors. Many said the course had been recommended by friends.

During September South Bay Branch Red Cross will sponsor a Mother and Baby Care course starting Sept. 5 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The class will meet on Wednesdays and Mondays until seven sessions have been completed. They will meet at South Bay Branch headquarters, 109 Emerald St., Redondo Beach. Registration may be made by calling Red Cross at OR 8-2107 or FR 2-5858.

Book Foundation Holds 15th Fete

The Great Book Foundation — oldest and largest adult education program of its kind in the U.S. — celebrates its 15th anniversary this year. Some 50,000 persons take part in 3000 discussion groups across the country — more than 1000 are enrolled in nearly 100 groups in the Los Angeles area, according to Mrs. Glenn Josephson, of the Torrance area.

According to Henry J. Bende, president of the Los Angeles Great Books Council, the aim of the program is to further liberal self-education. Participants read the great classics of Western literature, then gather in groups of ten or twenty to discuss what they have read. Volunteer leaders guide the discussion by asking questions — the participants, not the leaders, give their answers, and the group discusses them.

"Not only does a Great Books participant learn a great deal more about the work he has just read, by discussing it with his peers — he learns to express himself more readily and more clearly; he learns to listen to what the other fellow has to say; he learns to weigh and judge the divergent opinions that are expressed. And he learns to respect the opinions of his fellows, and that often there are good reasons for holding views other than his own," said Bende.

Discussion groups meet in schools, libraries, business offices, private homes — usually once every two weeks, sixteen times during the year. They read works on economics, history, philosophy; poems, plays, and novels; the Bible, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution. First-year readings, for example, include such immortals as Aristotle and Plato, Shakespeare, Milton, and Thomas Jefferson.

There is no enrollment fee or other charge for taking part in a Great Books discussion. Nor is there any educational or other requirement — only the desire to broaden one's horizons, Bende said.

Information may be obtained from the Great Books Discussion Program, 1509 N. Western Ave., Los Angeles 27, Hollywood 6-4548, or from Mrs. Josephson, FR 8-1880.
