'Accent on Youth' Concert Draws Near-Capacity Crowd

By VERA MILLS
The Civic Symphony Orchestra of South Bay and Torrance gave its "Accent on Youth" concert last Sunday afternoon at Torrance High School Auditorium to an audience which nearly filled the 1200 capacity hall.

Conductor Elyse Aehele charmed her audience with her vivid interpretations. The audience responded with warmth and enthusiasm. They applauded every selection, sometimes even interrupting to applaud a particularly pleasing part. At the end they recalled Maestro Aehele again and again.

It was gratifying to see so many young people accompanying the older listeners. They seemed to be having a wonderful time, and Maestro Aehele graciously stopped at each section of the numbers to allow them to clap. It was amazing to see so many soloists within the orchestra itself.

The young listeners were especially pleased when the conductor motioned each of those who had played a solo part to stand, at the close of the numbers. A reviewer cannot help but think that this is the finest kind of encouragement for students, both young and old.

Jimmy Howard, pianist, is a fine young artist. His playing of the concert by Kasch left nothing to be desired. It was done with understanding such as would have been a credit to an artist of double his 11 years. His encore, the Chopin "Grande Valse Brillante," opus 15, was presented with all the grace and charm which has endeared Chopin to all pianists.

The leading cellist, Frank Redlich, was soloist in the "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn." His strong, mellow tone and perfect intonation made this the high point of the first half of the program.
