

Torrance Boy Becomes an 'Eagle'

Six Years of Scouting, And David Ramsey, 15

Twenty little Torrance boys, faced the bright colors of red, white and blue and with hands over their hearts, earnestly repeated in the treble voices of childhood the Pledge to Our Flag.

Then they faced to the front, raised their right hands with thumbs firmly pressed against little fingers in a half century of Boy Scout tradition, and together repeated the Scout's oath.

That same scene is enacted every night that Troop 730 meets in the room near Artesia and Casimir in Torrance, but this night was a very special one, indeed, to boys of Troop 730.

This night, David Ramsey, a scout for six of his 15 years of life, became the very first boy from Troop 730 to become an Eagle, the highest achievement in Scouting.

Watching is big Ralph Manahan, 2510 West 171st St., Torrance, the boys' scoutmaster for three years, a warm glow lighting the rugged honesty of his face.

Also watching are Harold and June Ramsey, of 16926 Kristin, proud parents of David.

And so is Curtis P. Lailer, 2811 West 170th St., an assistant scoutmaster of the troop for the past year and a half, who takes over as scoutmaster when Ralph Manahan becomes advisor to newly formed Troop 730V—Explorer Scouts—with Eagle Scout David Ramsey as president.

From Cub Scout at nine to an Eagle Scout at 15 is a long path for a boy. Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class, Star and Life Scouts are way stations along that path.

Twenty-one merit badges are the milestones of David's way. Faithful attendance, responsibility and leadership to younger boys are the hallmarks.

What do those six years mean to David Ramsey?

"Quite a lot," the North High junior says, quietly.

But the eyes of Scoutmaster Manahan, of Harold and June Ramsey, of Assistant Scoutmaster Curtis B. Lailer eloquently say what David Ramsey's six years as a scout mean better than mere words could ever say!

You get some idea what those six years mean when you watch the earnest faces of 20 little Torrance boys turn to the bright colors of red, white and blue to repeat the Pledge to Our Flag.

It Was the 8th Hole, But It Was THE One

It was the eighth hole on the Knollwood Golf Course, and the cup was 160 Yards away. Duff Douglas Means, who gets his mail through the Torrance Post Office at his home, 354 E. 219th St., teed off.

A nice clean stroke it was, and his brother, Don, and Charles Mann, both coaches at Valley College, chorused: "It looks like you've got one."

And Duff did have one — a coveted hole in one, that every golfer dreams about, but few get.

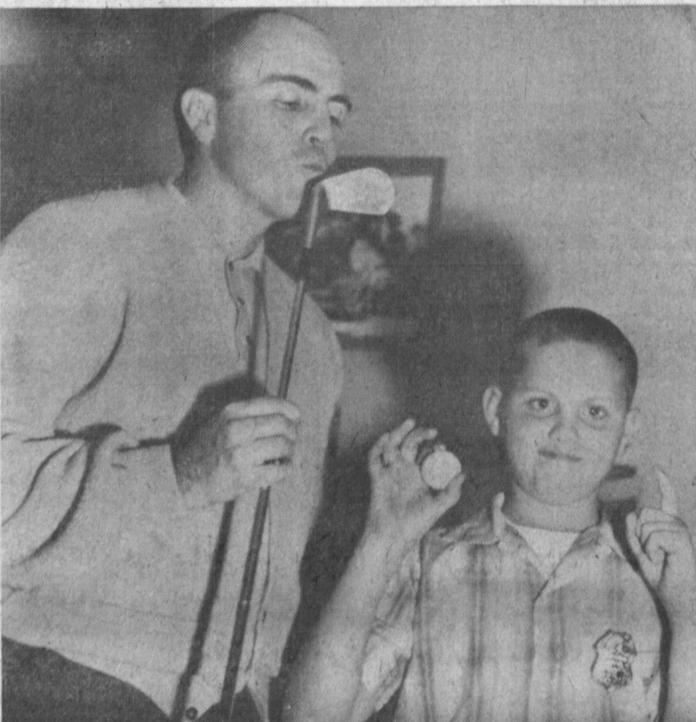

Now, Duff is entered in the Annual Old Smugglers Hole-in-One Sweep, and it may pay him $1,000 plus a trip to Scotland for two.

"It's funny how a stroke of luck like that can mean more in money than something you work hard to attain," said Duff.

"I'm really not too good a golfer," he added. "I needed that hole-in-one to break 90."

"I first thought, when I couldn't see the ball, that it was on the green, behind the stick," Duff said. "But, when I got there — it was in the cup."

Duff — "and I play like a duffer" — Means is director of student activities at Hawthorne High School. Formerly, he was the coach of basketball and baseball.
