

Contrasts Highlight Swim Suit Story

Just as in other facets of fashion, the swimsuit story is one of contrasts. California retains its lead in 1963 as swimsuit capital of the world, probably because it injects more fashion into less actual area of fabric, than in any other fashion center.

What makes news in the silhouette of swimwear is the high bib, the flirty skirt, the belted waist and the easy top.

Taking first things first, two piece suits continue, but with bib-topped bras that go as high as the collarbone, then reveal a wide midriff made up of you and only you. The trunks are snug, low-slung on some styles, but waist-high on most. Bikini's yes, but in the minority. Beach sweaters are new cover-ups; beach shifts and jackets in new lengths to maintain a look of modesty for the conservatives.

Freethinking to Be Topic of Telecast

The story of a "freethinker" and a Christian exploring the fantasy of sin will be telecast at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, at 10:30 a.m. on KCOP-TV Channel 13, Los Angeles. Pastor Manson Metcalf of the Torrance Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1610 Acadia, announced today.

Sponsored by the local Seventh-day Adventist Church, the telecast is one of a series of explorations into life's mysteries on "Faith For Today," a pioneer religious telecast featuring internationally-known Pastor William A. Fagal.

In Sunday's telecast, entitled "Moment of Doubt," the subjects of conformity and individuality as related to Christian living are studied, said Pastor Metcalf in commenting on the program. "The question of conflict between conformity and individuality in the Christian life is one that often repels persons from studying Christian principles because they have preconceived ideas as to what the answers are," noted Pastor Metcalf. "This telecast approaches this question in a most interesting way."

The silhouette that is most feminine is the one with a little flounce of a skirt, or pleats sometimes removable. One designer so believes in skirts that she shows separate ones in three lengths, above the knee, street length, and new "sandal" length, almost to the toes.

Leather belts or fiber belts or self-belts — some where in each collection of 1963 swimsuits you'll find them. They are noticeable and because they are wider they draw attention to the mid-torso. All are completely water-worthy, of course. The California designer that was first to use the eased top for a new silhouette in swimwear has shown that her influence is great. That relaxed look is still around, and in abundance. Her belief that swimwear must relate to the current fashion trends, has been solidified by the acceptance of women everywhere to the "fashion" look in swimsuits.

Fabrics are a marvel of sturdy dress, attractiveness, and figure control. The new synthetics that are lightweight, quick-drying and curve-molding are Vyrene and Lycra; Spandex and Helanca are woven with nylon and wool, for added qualities of elasticity. Antron and Arnel surah with their drapability make excellent soft silhouettes. Cottons were never more colorful, wools are knitted to new perfection. One firm shows a shiny, patent-leather-look in a two-piece swimsuit that will stop traffic.

Colors borrow from high fashion the combining of two neutrals such as slate and sand, black and beige or navy and natural. While they are the newest in swimwear, the bright beach colors in sun yellows, coral pinks, Nile greens and aquatic blues will most likely be best sellers. Prints are prolific — misty, watered florals, or brave, bold bright patterns are lovely to look at, delightful to wear. Use of tried-and-true red, white and blue is a tradition that continues year after year. If the water-sprites who wear California's newest crop of swimsuits don't cut a whistle-wide swath at next summer's beaches, it will be no fault of the designers.
