Recreation Review

By BEV BOSAK

Once there was an English teacher . . . and she had mostly senior students in her classes last year at a local high school. When Spring finally came, they were reaching the end of an enjoyable and at times exciting year; and the end, too, of an unusually rich experience in teacher-student relationships.

And so it was sad, in a way, that it had to end.

Now, most graduating seniors, and many teachers, too, search for summer employment. It was in May, perhaps, that this particular teacher discovered that five of her students had been hired as student-leaders for the summer program at the Torrance Recreation Department.

That was very nice, she thought since she, too, was going to be working for the recreation department, doing some writing for them. Her job would be one which might entail quite a bit of traveling about to various areas and to special events so that she could tell the community about these things, and it was likely that she and the former students might run into each other from time to time.

Prolong Acquaintance
All six were pleased that the summer would enable them to prolong their acquaintance before all went their separate ways. . . .

And it worked out that way. But a function other than what they all expected was served, for almost immediately after becoming involved with their separate jobs, every chance encounter turned into a talkfest about recreation.

A lot could be written here about what was said, but much of it could sound to the cynic like a "put up" job. So we will avoid the superlatives which could be included.

Harvey Aluminum Declares Dividend

A dividend of 30 cents per share was declared today on the A Common Stock of Harvey Aluminum (Incorporated). The dividend will be paid September 30, 1963, to holders of record of A Common Stock at the close of business on September 12, 1963. The action was taken by the Board of Directors of the company at a meeting held at the principal office of the company in Torrance, California.

The summer passed quickly. Two of the student leaders would continue their fine and worthwhile service on their playground areas until Aug. 30.

One, who had worked continuously with the day camp program, and two others who had transferred from their areas for training as camp counselors, would prepare for the department's mountain camp at Big Bear during the week of August 17 to 24.

The last would go on writing, trying to call to the attention of the Torrance community some of the things which their recreation department has made available to them.

Plan Pizza

Knowing, then, that there would be little time left for them to get together as a group, the six decided last week to meet for a pizza dinner and sort of sum up their summer experiences.

Although the remarks were not general, in the main, since each of the six friends was speaking from his own personal observations of the program in which he had been involved, and keeping in mind the fact that all of their many conversations, including this one, were now entirely free from any of the disadvantages to complete candor which ever might have been necessary in their former "teacher-pupil" relationship, their feelings might be summarized in this way:

1. They all had thoroughly enjoyed their work this summer.

2. They were impressed with the field of recreation, as they had seen it, and with what it is doing and trying to do for people.

3. They were impressed with the many people who make things go in the Torrance Recreation Department.

And in this day, when the word "organization" has become almost a taboo for the idealist — and all six of these people are impossible idealists — how much more can you say about one.

About an organization. . . . Of course, we're not sure that's what Torrance Recreation is.
