

Chace Tells Sea Barriers Bid Results

Supervisor Burton W. Chace has announced filing of an apparent low bid of $420,300.85 by Ted R. Gregory and Terodon Co. of Los Angeles, a joint venture, for construction of unit 1D of the seawater barrier project in Redondo Beach.

Four proposals were submitted to County Flood Control District Chief Engineer M. E. Salisbury. They ranged to a high offer of $513,654.

District engineers will check the bids and recommend award of contract to the Board of Supervisors in about ten days Chace said.

The pact will involve drilling 19 recharge wells which will be part of the overall system to create a fresh water barrier to prevent further intrusion by the ocean.

Site of the wells will be along Prospect St. between Anita and Spencer Sts. in Redondo Beach. They will reach down to depths of 600 to 700 feet, Chace said.

Work is slated to get under way within two or three weeks after the contract award and is due for completion about ten months later.

The project will be financed out of the current fiscal year budget of the Flood Control District, Chace said.

Off Season Blooms from Winter Rose

It is one of the oddities of gardening that some of the most useful and handsome of our plants are little used. What can we grow that will give blooms during the winter months? What can we do about that shady spot where the sun almost never reaches?

These are frequent questions yet an obvious answer is overlooked—plant a rose.

Naturally it isn't really a rose — for roses must have sun — but we call them Christmas Rose and Lenten Rose because of their blooming times and their charming, open-faced flowers.

These are actually Helleborus, plants with large, deep green, hand-like leaves deeply cut and handsome in their own right. They make clumps about 14 inches high and two feet across.

This is an excellent time to select the Christmas Roses you want because they will be in bloom and the ways of nature are such that it is difficult to tell the Christmas Rose from the Lenten Rose except by their blooming times. The two have been grown together for so long they've tended to intermarry, so you can visit your California Association of Nurserymen's nursery now to see for yourself what you're getting.

The flowers are about two inches across and the range of colors is from white through the pinks to purple. The Christmas Rose usually blooms from October to January and the Lenten Rose from January to April. By interplanting you get bloom throughout the winter and into spring.

This is a particularly valuable asset to those of you who want a supply of flowers for arrangements and corsages. The Helleborus flowers are quite striking and last very well. There are many Christmas and Lenten Roses with greenish or almost chartreuse flowers that are excellent with the rich browns of dried pods, driftwood and the like.
