Hollywood Reporter

By Mike Connolly

Dear Mike: I am 25 years old and one of the most avid Beatle fans around. Like you, it took me a while but once they'd proved themselves via their great movie performance I jumped on their bandwagon with a vengeance. But now I'm very concerned with various stories circulating about their rather questionable antics. Did George really throw liquor in a photographer's face? — Carole Rossman, Hollywood, Fla.

Dear G. F.: You're wrong about the movie. It has made millions for the Beatles, for producer Walter Shenson and for United Artists.

Dear Sir: Could you please tell me where Carl Reiner of "Celebrity Time" purchases his hairpiece? It is so natural and the best I have seen. — M. H. Hamilton, Mass.

Dear M. H.: Carl and his cohorts won't tell me. They say they want to keep you in suspense. However, every big city has expert wig makers and, since you live near Boston, I would suggest you check around there.

Dear Carole: Yes. He was tired from singing and posing all day. And as for that other part of your letter, in which you ask "Don't our idols have feet (and morals) of clay?", I can only point to the Good Book, which says that the just man falls seven times a day. The Beatles are human beings, Carole, even as you and I.

Dear M. C.: Anybody who doesn't like the Beatles should have his head examined. Both of them. — L. B. F., Newport News, Va.

Dear L.B.F.: Take it up with Elizabeth Harvell of the Bloomington, Texas, Harvells.

Dear Mike: What happened to Carroll Borland, who played the title role in "The Mark of the Vampire" opposite Bela Lugosi and Lionel Barrymore in 1934? She was the sexiest (in my opinion!) of all the vamps that Hollywood ever had. — Harold V. Latham, Sarasota, Fla.

Dear Harold: Carroll is now director of the Los Feliz Nursery School here in Los Angeles. And although she photographs, amazingly, much the same now as she did then, she has no yen to return to show business.

To the FINK: You're always knocking the Beatles. There's not one thing wrong with them but you're a stupid fool. I'll bet you're some bald headed skunk who is jealous because the Beatles have the most beautiful, long, clean hair in the world. I hate you, you lousy, good-for-nothing rat fink, etc., etc. — Anita M., Syracuse, N.Y.

Dear Anita: I would have run your entire letter but you were starting to spill over from four-letter-words to the five-letter variety and I don't have that much space.

Dear Mike: How come, if the Beatles are so big, Elvis Presley's records have topped them in so many polls? Their movie, "A Hard Day's Night," had an awful lot of advertising but I hear it didn't go over so well. I think they're showoffs and will just fade out. But Elvis still has that warm, searching look that goes on and on. — G. F., Ste. 4ton.

Redondo Cuts Parking Fee For Shoppers

Spend your dollars but save your dimes! The city of Redondo Beach has declared a moratorium on the use of parking meters until after Christmas as a gift to shoppers.

Parking enforcement will be maintained for all day parking only, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

City officials urged all owners and employees of retail establishments in Redondo not to abuse the privilege which was designed for shoppers.

This is a good month to transplant Camellias and as many of them are in bloom, you can put the colors where you want them.

They should be planted in a bright location with some sheltered sunshine although early morning sun is fine. The very worst place is one that gets the hot afternoon sun in the summer, and shade during the rest of the day. Some can stand full sunlight and your nurseryman can advise the best varieties for your location.

Be sure to dig a hole at least half again as large as the ball of your plant and if your ground is hard, fill the hole with water and add a soil penetrant. When the water has soaked into the ground, plant your camellia and water it again with a vitamin-hormone solution. If there are too many buds on your camellia pull off all but two or three in each cluster.

Do not fertilize until the plant has finished blooming; then monthly applications of a liquid solution of fertilizer and chelated minerals for 3 or 4 months will get your plant off to another season of blooms.
