CRAFTSMAN AT WORK . . . Torrance watchmaker Ronnie Phillips, 47, works on small pocket watch at watchmaker's lathe. Phillips, who has just opened a watch and clock repair shop in downtown Torrance, began his career in watchmaking at the age of 10. His shop will specialize in repairing precision time-

Master Craftsman Opens Watch Repair Shop Here

Individual craftsmanship is something that is almost a thing of the past as American industry becomes more and more automated.

Almost.

At least one craftsman is still hard at work in Torrance. He's Ronnie Phillips, who first began his career in watchmaking at the age of 10. Now 47, Phillips is a 37-year veteran of watch and clock repairing.

• • •

PHILLIPS recently opened his own shop at 1270 Sartori Ave. in downtown Torrance. He will specialize the repairing precision timepieces such as chronographs, accutron, and special purpose watches, as well as antique watches and clocks.

A native of West Virginia, Phillips came to Torrance six years ago. He was employed at Lawson's Jewelry until he opened his own shop last month.

• • •

PHILLIPS, who descrives himself as a "watchmaker of the old school," says he decided to become a watchmaker when he and his brother became involved in a dispute over an old watch. He won the argument, repaired the watch, then traded it for another watch in need of repair. He continued the trading, installing mainsprings during lunch at school. He left school at the end of the eighth grade, because, as he puts it, "I was spending more time with watches and clocks than with books."

In 1943, Phillips enrolled at the Western Pennsylvania Horological Institute (horology is the art of making a timepiece). He entered the institute with the highest entrance score ever submitted to the school. Phillips graduated from the institute in 1946.

Phillips is not only capable of precision repair work, he can make parts for watches and clocks of almost any description.

Reserve Officers Offered Briefing, Varied Courses

A comprehensive briefing on Viet Nam and an up-to-date review of Soviet-United States relations will be presented for all reserve officers in the Los Angeles-Orange County area at the opening session of Naval Reserve Officers School 11-4 Sept. 16 at California State College at Long Beach.

The speaker will be Dr. Sidney J. Slomich, former staff and operations officer for the Central Intelligence Agency, who is currently serving as senior analyst of Technical Operations, Inc.

"With the addition of new courses in meterology, program evaluation and review technique, public relations and advanced antisubmarine warfare, NROS 11-4 will offer the most comprehensive curriculum in its history this fall for reserve officers," said Commander C. Thomas Dean, Commanding officer of NROS 11-4.

• • •

THE CLASSES will be held weekly on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at California State College at Long Beach; Armed Forces Reserve Center, Santa Ana; and the Naval Reserve Training Center, Terminal Island. Although the classes are planned especially for Navy, Marine and Coast Guard Reserve officers, they are open to both Air Force and Army reservists.

Advance registration for the NROS classes indicates that counterinsurgency, space technology, oceanography and nuclear power will be among the courses in greatest demand.

All of the NROS courses provide full promotion and retirement credit.

Local Agency to Handle Technicolor Ad Account

Bryan Hardwick Associates capped an August new business drive last week with the acquisition of the $100,000 Technicolor advertising account. The agency appointment was made public by Curtis Kent, vice president of public relations for Technicolor.

Kent stated that the Palos Verdes Estates-based agency will handle all phases of Technicolor's advertising, including the motion picture, consumer - photographic, and commercial-educational divisions.

Account executives Bill Dodge will handle the Technicolor account with agency President Bryan Hardwick acting as account supervisor.

Preliminary market surveys are under way to determine exact media schedules. It is anticipated, however, that a mix of newspaper, magazine, and direct mail will be utilized.

The Technicolor account marks the second major acquisition by the Hardwick agency in August, the Janss/Conejo public relations account having been acquired earlier.

Carson Area Street Work Authorized

The Board of Supervisors has authorized $6,250 for street resurfacing projects in the Carson area, Supervisor Chairman Burton W. Chace reports.

Work, slated to begin in the near future, will include portions of the following roads:

Marbella Avenue from Sepulveda to Realty, Neptune and Ravenna avenues from Lincoln to Realty, and Lincoln and Realty streets from Marbella to Ravenna avenues, Supervisor Chace added.

Four Torrance students have been admitted to University of California at Davis for the fall semester, Registrar Elmer Wagner has announced.

Admitted were Judith Partsch, a junior in microbiology; Peggy L. Sabin, a freshman in letters and science; Ronald A. Stremel, a junior in animal husbandry, and William P. Thomas, a freshman majoring in pre-veterinary medicine.

Enrollment on the Davis campus of the University is expected to top 8,200 this fall, an increase of 27 per cene from last year.

Sky Limit for Heart Patient

Most of us who are old enough to read are old enough to remember when a verdict of "heart disease" meant a life sentence of semi-invalidism.

A long trip away from home was unthinkable. Distant vacation spots were off limits.

Today, the Los Angeles County Heart Association points out, the sky is the limit. Literally. For the cardiac whose horizons did not extend far beyond his front yard, modern medicine and modern aeronautics have opened new vacation vistas.

Doctors now have this rule of thumb for persons with cardiovascular disease: If you can walk up the steps to the plane, you can fly.

• • •

THE JET AGE has all but eliminated the problems of noise, turbulence and prolonged immobilization for passengers. Cabins are pressurized, and oxygen is available for those who need it.

So, if this is your year to get off to a flying start, the Los Angeles County Heart Association advises, see your doctor and get his clearance for take-off.

Before you plan your trip, whether it be by land, air or sea, here are a few more tips from the Los Angeles County Heart Association which you won't find in the vacation folders:

• • •

IF YOU ARE on a special diet—low sodium, low-fat or low-calorie: By arrangement in advance through your travel agent, airlines, ocean liners and trains will provide meals that fit your diet. So will hotels and restaurants, if you place orders in advance.

However, if you are planning a motor trip and will have to eat on the road, you would do well to carry your own supply of salt substitute and some low-sodium foods, for example.

• • •

IF YOU ARE planning a long auto, bus or train trip: Stretch your legs every hour or two. Prolonged inactivity, particularly in a sitting position, can cause circulatory difficulties with unpleasant complications.

Automobile trips should be broken up frequently to give driver and passengers a chance to move around. Such stops are scheduled on long bus trips, and train passengers can move about while the train is in motion. A good night's rest—each night, and in a bed—is a must. The person who rides through the night asleep in a coach seat is courting trouble.

The earliest appearance of edema (swelling) in feet and ankles is a warning signal that the exercise breaks are not frequent enough. It is a good idea also to help the circulation while riding by moving your legs or keeping them propped up. Older persons and those with circulatory inadequacies should consult their doctor about whether to wear special stockings or leg bindings during long auto or train trips.

• • •

WHETHER YOU ARE flying, sailing or motoring: Take along a supply of any medication you require regularly or may need in emergencies. Have your doctor give you a spare prescription to hold in reserve.

And if you're having a wonderful time, don't worry about your postcards being trite.

Volunteers Sought for Babysitting

"What is the sky?" asks a four-year-old. The sky, the sea, a snail, or a tree—all the things a child can wonder about. Each day brings renewed excitement and questions to children.

If you enjoy sharing the beauty of life with children, the Volunteer Bureau has an opening for you.

A local agency needs help with supervision of tots several hours daily. These are children of working mothers who pay for their care according to their ability. Most are able to pay only a small fee. You would be able to select your day and time.

For further information contact Mrs. Arthur Turner, executive director of the Volunteer Bureau, 1427 S. Pacific Ave., San Pedro, TE 3-5227, any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday morning.
