

War on Poverty Program

Montgomery Students Join Hospital Staff

Fourteen Bishop Montgomery students spent their summer vacation working at Little Company of Mary Hospital under provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act. Six girls and eight boys were employed by the hospital under the Neighborhood Youth Division of the war on poverty program. They included Stephanie Lewis, Joan Lippman, Armaleen Anger, Sandra Orchard, Marylou Rehuss, Anne Rhilinger, Frank Carbone, Tom Hutchinson, James Sibole, James Filce, John Sullivan, Peter Trocchi-no, Michael Marselle, and Zach Kennedy.

These students did the jobs that we knew needed to be done but never found time to do," George Ebert, assistant hospital administrator, said. In addition to the war on poverty, 105 Montgomery students regularly assist Little Company of Mary staff as members of the Junior Auxiliary. The Candy Strippers, as they are called, work four hours each week in the hospital and sponsor outside projects for the hospital building fund.

Awning Firm Wins Recognition For Aluminum Production Record

Imagine a strip of brightly colored aluminum that circles the globe four times. That's what you would see if the Air-Vent Awning Co. of Los Angeles had decided to line up panels it produced instead of using them in thousands of patio covers, window awnings, and trailer awnings. The firm, which has been serving families throughout this area since 1947, received recognition for the production feat this week at the Los Angeles County Fair. Olin H. Strapp, president of the awning manufacturing firm, accepted a trophy from the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.

Lighting for the grand prize-winning display is through the courtesy of the Southern California Edison Co. Both open and screened patios are displayed. The 34 shades of color ranging from white to turquoise and even simulated wood paneling combine with rounded, heart-shaped and traditional oblong patterns to give an infinite variety of options to the outdoor designer. THE DISPLAY is located in the Home Show Building of the Los Angeles County Fair. Air-Vent Awning Co. has plants in Chino, San Bernardino, Dallas, Tex., Hayward California, Honolulu, Hawaii, Albuquerque, N. M., and Houston, Tex. There are 27 geles. The home office is at 950 S. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles.

100,000-MILE AWARD . . . Dawn Walsh, queen of the Los Angeles County Fair, Norman A. Manger (left), executive of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., and Olin H. Strapp, president of the Air-Vent Awning Co., hold up four fingers to symbolize the awning firm's newest production feat. Manger presented the trophy shown here to Air-Vent for fabrication of 100,000 miles of aluminum paneling—enough to circle the globe four times. The presentation was made at Air-Vent's prize-winning exhibit at the County Fair.
