

Cranston Tells About Ghana's Experiences With Peace Corps

NOT ALL Peace Corpsmen are quite the quality of Dave Ripley. But most are. Claude Slicher, from Indiana, sunny and shining with a wonderful smile, is a math-chemistry and physics teacher at Mpraeso Secondary School. He is even teaching New Math. He also manages somehow to:

- Donate blood, work in the laboratory and entertain patients at the local hospital.
- Organize and coach a basketball team.
- Plant and grow all sorts of vegetables.
- Play on a native soccer team.

Supervise the school paper. Build a village playground. Slicher rises at 5:30 a.m. to plan his day. He sometimes closes it 18 hours later in a bull session with his Ghanaian friends.

AS FOR satisfaction, this is what he told me: "I guess I felt the best about the aims of the Peace Corps—and the most fulfilled—the day a Ghanaian teacher said: 'From all of the Peace Corps volunteers I've met, I just can't believe you have discrimination in your country.'" There are 98 Russian volunteer teachers in Ghana, too. As well as 48 from Great Britain and 48 from Canada.

INDIVIDUALS FROM 13 from East Germany and a few from West Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Denmark. Since English is the classroom language, the Russians labor under a severe handicap. Moreover, as one Russian told me: "You Americans have a way of getting to know all sorts of people so easily. Most of us know very few Ghanaians."

INDEED, I HEARD only one serious complaint in Ghana about the Peace Corps — and it was repeated by almost everyone, including the Peace

Corpsmen themselves: There are not enough.

Well, you may ask, so what? One hundred twenty-two splendid Americans, doing wonders perhaps, but in a Nation the size of Oregon. The answer may be this:

MANY YEARS AGO, a young man from Ghana studying in America, changed to stop at a small restaurant. What happened when he asked for a cold drink on that hot day deeply affects Ghana's relations with the United States today.

"If you're thirsty, go outside and drink out of the spitoon," the counterman told Kwama Nkrumah, now President of Ghana. If there had only been a

Wedge-Engine By Ford Cars

Defending champion Dan Gurney will have a chance to try for his fourth straight Motor Trend-Riverside 500 victory after all, according to an official announcement today from Riverside Raceway president Les Richter.

"We had a situation that for a time made it appear that Gurney and other factory-backed Ford drivers would not be in the field," Richter said.

Richter was referring to a recent ruling by NASCAR, sanctioning body for the $76,000 stock car road race Jan. 23, which banned the use of Ford's overhead camshaft engine, classifying it as non-stock.

Reacting to the ban, a Ford spokesman stated that its factory-backed teams would not be able to prepare alternate engines in time for the Riverside event.

However, that decision was reversed and Ford has agreed to enter teams at Riverside, using 1966 models equipped with the Company's 427-cubic-inch stock production, wedge-type power plant.

NASCAR on the other hand will consider use of the overhead cam engine for 1967.
