

DR. ROBERT W. KIRK
English Instructor

Article by Instructor Published

Anse Bundren, William Faulkner's central character in "As I Lay Dying," is the subject of El Camino College instructor Robert Kirk's article, "Faulkner's Anse Bundren," appearing in the winter issue of "The Georgia Review."

In the article, Dr. Kirk explains that Faulkner used his character to reflect the South while still keeping him at an universal level.

Motivated by a strong admiration for Faulkner, Dr. Kirk also authored a book, "Faulkner's People," published in 1963 by the University of California Press.

An instructor at El Camino College for 18 years, Dr. Kirk describes Faulkner as "a man in conflict with his heart, recreating the Southern atmosphere."

"Faulkner's Anse Bundren" is the first article by Dr. Kirk to appear in "The Georgia Review," a quarterly magazine of scholarship. A second article is scheduled to be published in "The Georgia Review" in March.

Students To Elect Officers

Five recently vacated positions as student body officers will be filled Friday during a special election at Palos Verdes State College.

Candidates for the five offices were nominated last week during a "Town Hall" meeting of the 41-member student body.

Students will ballot for a comptroller, upper division representative, commissioner of publications, commissioner of social activities and commissioner of finance.

Candidates include Eileen Moore and Howard K. Wolf, comptroller; Elaine Groves and Joan Belnap, upper division rep.; Mike Tripton and Ken Morris, publications; and Dana Carpenter and Rick Gates, social activities. Gary Zimmerman is unopposed for the finance position.

Student Body President Bill Hart chaired the special "Town Hall" meeting.

Real Estate Classes Set For Adults

Forty-eight classes in the field of real estate will be offered during the spring semester at 25 Los Angeles adult schools. Registration for the semester, which begins Monday, Jan. 31, is now under way.

Courses will include real estate law, real estate appraisal, real estate sales, and real estate finance. Property management, a part of house law and management, and condominiums will be subjects of other classes.

Adult school centers are located at Narbonne High School and at Gardena High School. Specific information regarding classes to be offered in this area may be obtained by calling the schools after 1 p.m. daily.
