

New officers of the Torrance Stamp Club will be elected at a meeting Monday, Feb. 14, at the Scott Park Community Building, 23410 Catskill Ave., Wilmington.

A club sale of materials left over during the past year will be held. Visitors are welcome to the meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Dream Home Has Lots of Rooms

I realize everybody means well, but I'm getting a little tired of people assuring me that our home certainly has a "lived-in" look. So does the lobby of any hotel after an American Legion convention. But I'm going to stop feeling guilty about it, even though it appears that we have the only living room floor seemingly "carpeted" with toys, scattered newspapers, and kids — wall-to-wall.

Consider yourself lucky, too, if you can find a chair to sit on, because if the kids are home from school they will have thrown their books, coats, sweaters and jackets on every available seat.

But do you know whom I blame? (Just guess whom my husband blames, incidentally?) I say the guilt rests on the designers of today's homes who advocate the "open-floor" plan in which the rooms all run into each other. And so do the inhabitants.

What I would prefer is a return to the old-fashioned concept of dozens of chopped-up little rooms — parlors, studies, music rooms, sitting rooms, standing rooms, vestibules, entry halls — instead of the present "airplane hangar" living room which accommodates all of these plus the dining room as well.

Should one of these little rooms become mussed up, you could conceal the wreckage by closing the door if company (not to mention Friend Husband) drops in unexpectedly.

If need be, the one room in which company is entertained could be under lock and key, with a federal NOT "attics" which are housed in the other half of a two-car garage, making it possible for kids to rummage through boxes and scatter the contents all over the driveway.

Bedrooms? I think that teen-agers' rooms should be in a separate wing, away from the rest of the house. Maybe in the next country. I'd also like a sanctum sanctorum where I could retire occasionally, one with a drawbridge and a moat. But I don't see much likelihood of getting it.

The cotton textile industry is the largest manufacturing industry in Egypt.

How long has it been since you've been back to school?

It's true, times have changed since many of us were last in school . . . architecture, modern methods of education and the students themselves have changed. A solid education has never been so important to the youngsters living in your neighborhood!

Young families look for superior educational opportunities and other civic improvements when they consider buying a home in your community. Good school facilities improve your community's worth and help keep your property's value high.

Most new schools are financed through the sale of municipal bonds. These bonds distribute the cost over a long period to keep taxes at a reasonable level. Interest rates are decided by competitive bidding . . . added assurance that your community will get the lowest interest rates on their bonds.

Bank of America and its associated dealers bid on virtually all California state and municipal bonds . . . You can show your interest by voting in all municipal bond elections for community improvements.
