PV State Plans 'Small College'

Plans for a "college within a college" to be opened in 1969 have been announced by Dr. Harry A. Nethery, dean of facilities planning at Palos Verdes State College.

ground for new ideas and new programs.

"FACULTY members for the Small College will be specially selected in terms of their reputations in undergraduate instruction," Dr. Cain said.

Once the PV State graduate program is launched, the Small College will be used by graduate students preparing for a career in college teaching.

"THE SMALL College is not intended to be an honors college," Dr. Leo F. Cain, president of PV State, said.

The Small College will be an undergraduate college, concentrating its entire energies on undergraduate instruction, Dr. Cain added.

CURRENT PLANS call for separate buildings, faculty, and student body in the Small College.

The Small College concept, first of its kind in the nation, already has been called "an exciting plan" by J. Peter Elder, dean of the Graduate School at Harvard University.

COUNT MARCO

Dumpies Must Be Sad Examples

There are three types of female has-beens in this country—Widows, Divorcees and Dumpies.

If you're a widow and did not drive your husband to his grave, or beat nature to the finale with a little under-the-table help, then you need not be insulted when referred to as a has-been wife because you were truly once a wife.

Divorcees are self-explanatory. You became a has-been through your own undoing. But the worst of the group is the has-been who has been dumped.

According to the Tracers Co. of America, 35,560 husbands did just that to their wives. It should come as a most unpleasant surprise to those of you who think you have it made after 15 or 20 years of marriage that of the dumpies who left you flat, 83 per cent were in the 40 to 50 age bracket and only 1 per cent ran away because of another woman.

There must be a good reason why only 56 wives left home. There is. Obviously, few men are such poor husbands that a wife will run away.

If you're one of those unwanted who now wants him back, take heart, I, Count Marco, come to your rescue. I suggest you keep your mouth shut instead of moaning about the so-and-so deserting you and, instead, take stock. No husband leaves a wife who is, first of all, loving and considerate.

Did you spend him out of bed and board? Did he leave you because he just couldn't take any more of your demanding, your spending, your lack of consideration for his pocketbook? Were you so insulating to his manhood as to commit marital suicide by becoming one of those working wives, so you could have more of things you really could have done without?

He knew you could stand on your own two feet, so wherever he's hiding, his conscience isn't bothering him one bit.

While you're taking score, take a look at your mother. She probably heads the list of the reasons your husband abandoned you. He is dumped.

ing two old birds with one stone.

If you want him back and promise to mend your ways, Tracers can probably find him. But I am primarily concerned with preventing such catastrophe in this country.

When the first of the month comes around, sit down and take a look at all those bills. Did you run up most of them? Were they all so necessary? Probably not. So cut down immediately.

Are you working? Give two weeks' notice right now and stay home where you belong and can spend more time making his house something he won't want to leave behind.

Well, my dears, good luck. Remember, being a divorcee is inexcusable, because it's within your control to prevent it. But to be dumped! Mon Dieu! You must indeed be a sad, sad example of femininity.

State Colleges Eye Plan For Year-Round Classes

(From Education News Service) Palos Verdes State College may add a fourth quarter in the summer of 1968 if a plan now being considered by the California State College Board of Trustees is approved.

The new college opened this year under the quarter system, but now offers instruction only during three quarters of the year. If the plan is approved, two other colleges also will add the fourth quarter.

Trustees are considering the proposal in an effort to take the sting out of a request by the Coordinating Council for Higher Education that conversion to year-round operation of the 18 state colleges be accelerated.

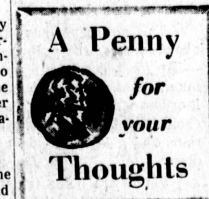

UNDER THE Council request, which has the force of an order, conversion of the state college campuses to the quarter system is to be completed by 1967-68, and to year-round operation by 1970-71.

This speed-up would not allow the State Colleges to follow a planned experimental, campus-by-campus approach which would allow the trustees and central administration to profit from early experiences as they tackle later conversions.

The proposal under study involves by-passing the quarter-system requirement temporarily and converting to year-round operation in the summer of 1968 on whatever calendar system is in operation at each college.

He asserted that the major problems and conflicts come in conversion to the quarter system and that there is no reason why the fiscally more important conversion to all-year operation cannot come first.

"I realize," Livingston said, "that this plan could be construed as a subterfuge to circumvent the will of the Coordinating Council, but that is not what we have in mind. The state colleges are committed to saving taxpayers' money, but also to protecting the quality of education in the system. I think this plan allows both."

By HAL FISHER Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen said in a speech last week to the Washington chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society, that he planned a Senate battle to overturn the Supreme Court's Dec. 13 decision banning voluntary school prayer.

Cal State Hayward already is on a four-quarter plan, while both Cal Poly campuses will add the fourth quarter next year. Like Palos Verdes, Stanislaus and San Bernardino state colleges opened this year on a three-quarter calendar.

Livingston argued the plan would provide the financial savings promised by year-round operation, estimated at $10.7 million during a 10-year period, three years earlier than requested by the Coordinating Council.

"Do you go along with Sen. Dirksen's views on this issue?"

Betty Clark, 2043 Reynolds Dr., Torrance:

"Yes, I'm very strong for it. I go along with him all the way on this point."

The voluntary participation of the students in school prayers sounds like a fair way to solve the problem."

Bee Hupp, Cedar Rapids, Iowa:

"Yes, I do. I think the ruling takes away something of our American heritage from our children. Part of what made America great is belief in a higher power."

Carol Miller, 18319 Mansel Ave.:

"A child should feel free to pray at any given time no matter where he is. I'm for the voluntary prayer time in the schools. I think we are drifting away from vital part of the past."

Gloria Rensen, 23203 Adolph Ave.:

"I'm for his proposal of voluntary prayers. Under this system every student would have the right to pray or not pray as he wishes. This would be no violation of anybody's beliefs."

Betty Hickman, 5502 Via Del Valle:

"I would support the Supreme Court in this instance. Religious freedom is all important but separation of church and state must be preserved. We need all available school time for education. A child can certainly pray at school if he wishes, but personally rather than as part of a formal group exercise."

Ann Landers Says

You'd Only Stir Up Some More Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know if I should get an abortion, a divorce, or just ask my husband to leave and send the support checks in the mail.

We've been married eight years. This is my second marriage, Jack's first. My first husband and I wanted children but we never had any. He was killed in an accident a few weeks before our fifth anniversary.

Dear Crisis: Forget about all three alternatives expressed in your opening sentence. The first is illegal and the other two only hatch more problems.

Have the baby and write to me a year from today. I'll bet your husband will be the proudest papa on the block. (P.S. It sounds like you married into a great little group.)

Dear Ann Landers: Since you know a lot about teenagers I'm sure you are aware that kids talk about sex. Most of the talking is done in in abortions. He has suggested that I go to them. I want to have this baby and I'm sick at heart that Jack is so against it. I love him in spite of his abnormal feelings about children and I don't want to lose him. What should I do?—CRISIS AT 33

Dear Ann Landers: A girl who works in this office wears false eyelashes, a wig, several layers of make-up, contact lenses and her teeth are capped. I can't prove it, but I'll bet her fantastic measurements are phony too—just like the rest of her.

I am no beauty but at least I never have to worry about anything falling off. Furthermore I'm very neat about my person while the patched up job is downright sloppy. So how come she gets asked out five or six nights out of seven and I'm lucky to have a date on Saturday night? Does this make sense to you? I am not envious, I am—BAFFLED

Dear Baff: Apparently Miss Loose Paris keeps glued together long enough to make a good impression, and the men must enjoy her company if they continue to take her out. I'll bet the most important thing going for her is the ability to communicate. This quality nobody can fake.

Are you at war with your parents? Do they have too much money in your life? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Bugged By Parents' How To Get More Freedom." Send $6 in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. © 1965, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate
