

Continuous Training Is Important, Says Chief

Training sessions attended by members of the Torrance Police Department or conducted by the department were listed this week by Chief Walter R. Koenig.

In listing the accomplishments of the department since he became chief in July of last year, Koenig emphasized the importance of maintaining a "balanced and continuous training program."

Accomplishments of the department include:

- Thirty-two officers re-lands, son of Mrs. Anne Hyuzl instruction in police pursuit driving from the Los Angeles Sheriff's Training Academy.
- Thirteen potential supervisors have been enrolled at El Camino College for the year to receive a total of 104 hours of instruction in police administration.
- Four officers completed 80 hours of specialized narcotics instruction under the direction of the U.S. Treasury Department.
- Seven recruits are now in training at the Sheriff's Academy. Three will graduate Friday, while the remaining four will graduate March 13.

- Lt. Joseph Miles has completed a 96-hour advanced course at the ninth annual Police Management Institute at USC's School of Public Administration.
- Lt. Donald Nash, commander of the juvenile division, is now undergoing an 18-week advanced training course at USC's Delinquency Control Institute on a full scholarship awarded by the Southern California Automobile Club.
- Three policewomen and two police matrons attended a three-day institute conducted by the Women Peace Officers' Association of California and Los Angeles State College.

• David Seibert, 22, has been employed as a student trainee to observe functions of the department. Seibert, a student at Long Beach State College, has applied for a position when he graduates in June.

- A Program of in-service training has been initiated by the divisional loan system. An officer assigned to the patrol division is rotated monthly to the vice division for field experience.

- A daily roll-call training session lasting 20 minutes is conducted at the beginning of each shift. Material deals with specific technical aspects of police work and is conducted by the shift supervisor.

Chief Koenig said the department would continue to participate in seminars and other training sessions.
