Local Plant Honors Long-time Employes

"Been here so long, they say I was born out in the scrap yard," quipped Joseph S. Arias, who heads the list of U. S. Steel employes honored for long service at Torrance Works.

"Long-timer" Arias, who lives in Compton, was born in Panjamo, Mexico. He began his first real job as a laborer at the plant, then called Llewellyn Iron Works, in 1925.

Now a maintenance mechanic, Arias said he often was asked to serve as an interpreter during his early years of work.

Construction Of Sidewalk On Schedule

Construction of a four-foot-wide sidewalk along Main Street between 223rd Street and Lomita Boulevard is progressing, Supervisor Chairman Burton W. Chace reports.

The sidewalk, being constructed under a $6,600 allocation approved by the Board of Supervisors, will be on the east side of the heavily traveled thoroughfare.
