CHAPEL THEATRE

If rehearsals at Chapel Theatre in Torrance are any example of what audiences may expect for the five weekend performances of "A Thousand Clowns" by Herb Gardner, then patrons will be well entertained for their admission price. Under the direction of Michael B. Druxman of Hollywood, actors are being put through their paces. The hilarious comedy revolves around the TV character known as "Chuckles the Chipmunk" portrayed by Duke Schneider of Torrance. Murray, played by Fred West of Fountain Valley, is under question by the Welfare Board since he is the guardian of his nephew Nick, (Lee Ellsworth of Torrance). Becoming emotionally involved with the social worker Sandra (Merrell-Ann Haddan of Long Beach), Murray's life is further complicated since he must choose between losing his nephew, or going back to the business of writing for the phony TV character he detests. Further fun and frolic are provided by Bruce Freeland of Torrance who envies Murray's way of life, and Murray's brother Arnold (Dick O'Neil of Redondo Beach) who tries to instill
