Harvey Income Shows Gain Over Year Ago

Sales of $57,525,615 and a net income of $4,044,034 were reported by Harvey Aluminum for the nine months ending June 30. "The company has been involved in a labor dispute at its plant in Torrance since April 5," said Lawrence A. Harvey, president. "However, the plant is continuing to operate and reasonable production levels have been achieved and production is increasing steadily."

In addition to the Torrance plant, the company operates five other domestic facilities, 20 factory branches, and offices and affiliated mining and factory operations overseas. The company also reported that the deep water port in St. Croix has been opened to traffic and has been used by large ocean-going vessels discharging cargo for plant construction.
