Taxpayers' Revolt Brews In State, Finch Believes

"A taxpayers' revolt" is brewing in California, according to Robert Finch, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Finch, making his first bid for statewide office, said that the recent municipal elections in Southern California were "more than straws in the political winds — they are a clear indication that California's home-owners and renters feel they have reached the limit in what they can afford to pay in residential property taxes."

FINCH, WHO directed Senator George Murphy's upset victory in 1964, said he "could not remember a time in the last 20 years when more incumbent city and county officials were turned out, or narrowly re-elected, including several with two or more terms in office. Nor can you overlook the fact that so many local bond issues and tax-overrides have been defeated since the first of the year—11 out of 20 in Los Angeles County, 6 out of 10 in Orange County, and 5 out of 7 in Santa Barbara County.

"This is a very serious matter," Finch continued. "Historically, Californians have voted to tax themselves heavily to build a superior public school system. This has been one of the important reasons for our state's growth in the post-war period.

"I do not believe that the voters have reached their present state of mind lightly, and I see no evidence that this trend will be reversed unless the present administration is removed.

"THE PEOPLE of California are demanding that property taxes must stop going up and up. Yet, at the same time, we have to build more and more classrooms to educate our children. Obviously, those who would exercise leadership in California must face up to these conflicting needs. Our tax burden must be re-apportioned away from present imbalance.

"There isn't any easy answer, and no tax system can be devised that will please everybody; but the status quo has to be changed, because it will no longer be tolerated by the California voters," Finch concluded.

COUNT MARCO

Your Feet Are Part of You, Too

In Italy and France, wine making is a great occasion. With the feet. But after looking at your feet the mere thought of them squishing the luscious grapes into wine would turn your nectar of the gods into vinegar. Why is it so many of our American women have forgotten that feet are also a part of your body?

On the beach at Waikiki I saw too many of you stumbling along in sandals, baring knobby, corn-encrusted, callused toes and heels. I never cease to marvel at your inconsistency. You purchase gallons of creams and lotions for your hands because you apparently are aware they can be seen, but your feet, as a rule, are hidden by shoes, so you choose to ignore them.

You're stepping into the casual footwear season. So give yourself a treat with a treatment. The mark of a truly cultured woman is that she can take her shoes off at the pop of a champagne cork and have every man at her side gladly willing to drink from her slippers.

Not only is proper foot care an important beauty asset, but it is also a prime factor in maintaining your health. Besides, when your feet look ugly you look ugly all over.

Prepare for summer foot beauty now with these simple steps.

Immediately after a tub or shower, rub a body lotion or cream on the heels, sides of the feet and tops of the toes. Then proceed to give each foot at least a 30-second massage. If your feet are in a really sad state of neglect, repeat the beauty cream massage treatment at least twice a day with a final love pat of lotion on them just before retiring.

Don't be a foot chopper, chipping and cutting away at corns and calluses. Not only is this dangerous, but self-butchered leaves ugly, unsightly scars.

Your podiatrist can be as valuable a friend as your beautician. Keep in mind that almost every nerve in your body has an ending somewhere in your feet. Obviously, then, a foot beauty treatment is also a health treatment.

This is why I have so often suggested that you massage your feet when he comes home from a hard day's work. The application of cream by your soothing fingers puts him in a receptive frame of mind for those little unexpected projects you plan to pop on him later.

At the first sign of a corn or raw spot on your foot, from either new shoes or sandals, cover the area immediately with corn plasters or pads. To ignore such soreness, even for a few hours, can cause ugliness that may plague you for years.

Shoes are the biggest foes of foot beauty and comfort. Choose them with care. If you must make a decision between solid comfort and uncomfortable fashions, take comfort.

Tonight ask your feet if he thinks your feet are beautiful. But not before dinner.

Carpentry Students Win Top Honors at Meeting

Carpentry apprenticeship in America, which dates back to the Mayflower, still has an important place in modern education at El Camino College.

The college offers two apprenticeship programs. The first, a pre-employment plan, consists of day classes for two years. Students build houses on campus and receive other instruction in carpentry.

The second plan for apprentices is an evening program in which students usually take four hours of class per week.

"Those who complete the two-year plan usually go to work as advanced apprentices in carpentry. This enables them to go on and become foremen, supervisors and contractors," Dr. G. Theodore Elmgren Jr., coordinator of instruction for the El Camino College industrial arts department, explained.

CARPENTRY apprentices undergo a four-year program, consisting of eight six-month periods, with exams at the end of each period. Apprentices must attend a minimum of 144 hours of school per year, in compliance with California's Shelly-Maloney Act.

Recently the Los Angeles County Joint Apprenticeship Committee held completion ceremonies at the Rodger Young Auditorium to honor those apprentices who have completed their four-year training program and have become journeymen carpenters.

Representing El Camino College at the ceremony were Dr. William H. Harless, vice president of instructors in the industrial and technical arts department, and Dr. Elmgren. They were accompanied by their wives.

THOSE WHO completed the El Camino carpentry program were Clarron R. Barker, Robert E. Burris, Jack Norman Daniels, Donald J. DiManno, Oran K. Doty, Ward L. Fairchild, Max P. Fischer, Adrian Foss, Ivan L. Gallyer, Ronald M. Gilbert, Ronald J. Householder, Robert S. Keller, Donald T. Massey, Delbert Medlock, Daniel T. Mellillo, Norman Mikkelsen, Delmas L. Perry, Robin Radford, James Remy, Paul E. Tarcaia, Donald Tilden, and Alan G. Winger.

Among those honored as outstanding apprentices for each area were El Camino College students, Gilbert, Local 25; Fischer, Local 1500; and Daniels, Local 1752.

"The apprentice program gives good carpenters who know the ins and outs—the scientific principles and the theory of carpentry," Elmgren said. "These fellows who have completed the program will be future leaders," he predicted.

A unique feature of the El Camino carpentry program is that students can register and begin classes any time during the semester.

Ann Landers Says

Don't Hold Hands During Big Game

Dear Ann Landers: My boy friend and I attend rival high schools. It isn't just ordinary, everyday rivalry, it's real bitter competition. Our schools really hate each other.

When Bobby's school plays an out-of-town team I always sit with him, and I cheer for his team. He does the same when my school plays an out-of-town school. But when Bobby's school plays my school we have real trouble deciding where to sit.

Last year I sat with him but I cheered for my own team. All the kids around made rude remarks, like, "Shut your mouth or go over where you belong." Last year Bobby sat with my school but he cheered for his team. Some of the kids who were sitting nearby threatened to do him bodily harm.

Please tell us how this problem should be handled. —NOT REALLY TRAITORS.

Dear Not Really: There are bound to be mixed emotions during these highly charged events. I believe the sensible way to handle the problem is to separate when your school plays his school. Each of you will be more comfortable if you sit with your classmates.

Dear Ann Landers: For 20 years I have been married to an unhappy man. He has always had a sour attitude toward life. He resents people who are cheerful and contented.

Although my husband has done many spiteful things to hurt me, I have stayed married to him because he is basically a decent man. Our three children are turning out well and I'm sure I could not have done that job alone.

Three years ago I took up painting at my doctor's suggestion. It has been wonderful therapy for me and has led to a part-time job which I love. The job does not interfere with what I can do for my children since I leave for work after they go off to school and I am home before they return.

My husband insists that I quit the job. He says my first duty is to our home. I'm afraid that, like so many people who are unhappy, he can't bear to see anyone enjoy life. He liked it better when I was miserable and half sick.

I want desperately to keep this part-time job. But suddenly I feel drained of all my strength and I no longer have confidence in my own judgment. Please help me. —TIED TIED TIED.

Dear Tied: Does your husband complain because the beds are unmade or the meals inadequate? Take inventory—and be honest.

If the house is not up to snuff, hire some help. But DON'T give up your part-time job! It has given you a feeling of achievement, dignity, and personal worth and you must not lose it.

Confidential to Shall I Give Him A Hand?: No. Give him a foot, strategically placed. The man has been lying and sponging off decent people who trusted him. If you tolerate his presence another day—much less set him up again—you are out of your ever-lovin' mind!

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' book, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
