

Detroit's Steeds On Way To Becoming a Bit Safer

By REYNOLDS KNIGHT

It has been said that the average American can be described as having two legs, four wheels, and a spare tire. Who said it we don't know—but who could deny the accuracy of it after spending an evening browsing through the International Automobile Show which graces the big city every April? You almost sniff the winds of change in the car industry whose offerings radically alter millions of American bank books every year.

The auto body shapes are just as distracting this year, and so are the leggy lovelies who smile at you from every booth. But when you get around to looking at the rest of an exhibit you note something new: nearly every pretty car and pretty girl is flanked by an automotive safety exhibit, rare fare in other years.

Conclusion: The day of the luxury option and 300-plus horsepower is still with us, but driving these potent steeds is about to become a bit safer. The industry's conscience is hurting and it's going to work to the benefit of the man behind the wheel.

BUDGET BACKBREAKER—How would you go about buying food for a family that consumes 19,475,000 hamburgers, 61,000,000 turkey dinners, 6,900,000 slices of apple pie, and 130,000,000 cups of coffee a year?

This is a problem that belongs to H. W. Bode, vice president of restaurant operations for the F. W. Woolworth Co., who has to worry about feeding a million mouths a day at the big chain's food counters.

The solution to his gigantic budget problem comes direct from the housewife with a large family—he buys as much food as possible from the nearest possible quality source in the neighborhood.

According to Bode, Woolworth's is the country's largest purveyor of foods prepared and served on the premises. "We have found," he says, "that our long-standing policy of buying locally benefits both our customers and the economy of the communities we serve."

THINGS TO COME—A new anchor reel and bow mount for small boats. The bow mount retracts the anchor stock securely into the mount while holding the anchor away from the boat, thus protecting the hull from bumping. A turn of the control knob releases the anchor quietly and smoothly. No danger from spinning crank handle either, thanks to a free-spooling feature similar to that of a casting reel for fishing. . . A cordless electric clothes brush, rechargeable and weighing only 3/4 pound, that will operate for about 12 days. Also suitable for small cleaning jobs like upholstery, lampshades, curtains, etc. . . A vending machine to dispense automotive products like oil, additives, filters, polishes, etc. may soon be seen at some service stations. Can hold 162 ounce quart oil cans; will accept nickels, dimes and quarters.

DEMAND FOR BEAUTY—Strong evidence that housewives are demanding beauty as well as convenience in their household cleaning supplies is the recent surge of sales of paper towels featuring color and design.

Harry J. Sheerin, vice president of Kimberly Clark Corp., reports that disposable towel sales have more than doubled in the past five years to a total of more than a billion rolls last year, and he gives the kitchen-brightening role of the colored versions credit for much of that rise.

Sheerin estimates that more than 70 per cent of American homes now use paper towels in the kitchen as well as in other locations, and that recent efforts to make them more attractive—such as introduction of the two-color "designer" line by Kleenex—have established them as one of the fastest-growing items in the paper industry.

BITS O' BUSINESS—Small investors—those who deal in "odd lots" of less than 100 shares—take heart: the SEC and the Stock Exchange appear to be nearing agreement on reducing the extra fee you have to pay to buy and sell such small amounts of stock. . . Washington sources say heavy federal and private emphasis is being put on winning union backing of plans for rehabilitating run-down housing. But the long-range goal of the rehabilitation program to open building union rolls to more Negroes and other "disadvantaged workers" is touchy, they concede. . . Two-home families are becoming more numerous. A housing industry study estimates that over 150,000 second homes were built last year, more than half again as many as in 1960. The projection is for 250,000 second-home starts in 1966.

Counseling Group Sets Discussion of Gambling

A representative of Gamblers Anonymous will address the Associates of Southwest Counseling Service Tuesday, May 10, according to Mrs. Virginia Henderson, president of the Associates.

Mrs. Henderson, of 2107 W. 183rd St., said the meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the auditorium at the Southwest Counseling Service, 7323 Crenshaw Blvd.

A member of the Associates since 1954, Mrs. Henderson was elected president of the group in January. She previously served as program chairman.

THE 80-MEMBER organization, which serves all of Southwest Los Angeles County, is a social auxiliary of the counseling service. It was organized to provide social and educational opportunities for persons associated with the counseling service, as well as to raise funds to support the non-profit service.

Southwest Counseling Service was organized in 1945 by Dr. Beulah Williams to provide counseling services and psychiatric help at fees within the reach of average wage earners, according to Mrs. Beulah K. Jordan, director of the service.

Mrs. Jordan, of 22867 N. Nadine Circle, Torrance, who became director of the service in January, 1965, previously worked as a counselor and teacher for the group. She has been associated with the group since 1952.

PURPOSE of the counseling service, Mrs. Jordan explained, is to offer "preventive" counseling so people will never need psychiatric care. Services ranging from testing and vocational guidance to marital counseling, child guidance, and special tutoring are offered, she said.

In addition, a lecture service providing outstanding speakers for community service clubs and civic organizations is maintained by the group. Day and evening classes in "Human Relationships" are offered by the educational department.

SOUTHWEST Counseling Service offers private counseling and instruction by appointment, as well as classes in philosophy, religion, logic, and the dynamics of human emotions. The Associates meets on the second Tuesday of each month. Mrs. Henderson explained. In addition, special events are scheduled each month. Mrs. Henderson will review the book, "The Parental Image" by Mary Harding, at a special meeting May 24. Meetings of the Associates are open to any person interested in the work of Southwest Counseling Service, Mrs. Henderson added.

REVIEW PLANS . . . Mrs. Beulah Jordan (left) and Mrs. Virginia Henderson review plans for the May 10 meeting of the Associates of Southwest Counseling Service. A spokesman from Gamblers Anonymous will address the 80-member group. Mrs. Henderson, a Torrance resident, is president of the Associates. Mrs. Jordan, also a Torrance resident, is director of the Southwest Counseling Service, a non-profit organization. (Press-Herald Photo)

The elephants were obtained on a hunting expedition to Kenya, East Africa, by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Machris and the late Tom Knudsen and his wife.
