Coffee Break

By Adeline Daley

I used to think of myself as a fairly good sport when I was involved in the same type of competition at school in which my own children are now competing. In fact, I won a good sportsmanship trophy one year, but in retrospect I think it might have been given because of my Academy Award speech when I conceded my defeat and acknowledged that "Gladys Hefflemeyer REALLY deserved being elected."

However, as a parent I don't think WA

eing elected."

However, as a parent I don't think I'd stand a chance of winning a similar award. The acting job would be too difficult, for what parents can concede believeing that their child didn't deserve to win the lead to the school play or starting quarterback?

But it isn't that my children have never won anything. It's just that the competition they choose to enter is overcrowded and consequently their chances of winning are narrowed. For instance, I think every girl in the school that Patrice attends must try out for cheer leader at one time or another. The elimination trials alone go on for weeks while we at home are subjected to a continual display of practice arm waving and chants of, "Go, team, go."

I keep asking my kids to try out for the Chess Club or the School Clean-Up Committee, but they'll hear nothing of it.

I even suggested to Brian that he try out

I even suggested to Brian that he try out for the school LaCrosse team instead of fresh-man football. But apparently there isn't a La-Crosse team, but why couldn't he organize one instead of competing for a position on the foot-ball team with 60 others? And 59 of them, I ball team with 60 others? And 59 of them, I might add, all seeking the job of quarterback. Perhaps, it might be wise for both Patrice and Brian to try out for "spectator." The school is going to need them.

The pinnacle in the try-out competition has to be the rivalry in grammar school to become a "monitor." There are monitors of all levels — Bell Monitors, Chalk Monitors, Corridor Monitors and the top monitor, the Lunch Monitor Particularly if you are Diane's age and are placed in a supervisory capacity over the younger grades.

Unlike presidential aspirants, nobody in the fifth grade denied they were a candidate for the post. And naturally I began to root for Diane, although I restrained myself from sending a campaign poster to the teacher stating Diane's qualifications: "Leadership, integrity, experience."

I'll have to say that Diane took her defeat

I'll have to say that Diane took her defeat in stride, vowing she'd try again — next week. In the meantime she was quick to concede that "Jill Haight really deserved to win." "Go. team, go!"

AT UNITED WAY KICKOFF

Since ten United Way agencies and the Red Cross serve Torrance residents, the women of Torrance are enthusiastically volunteering their services as solicitors for the United Way Drive now under way. Attending the county-wide kickoff at the Hollywood Palladium are three Torrance Junior Women's club members, from left Mrs. Milton Gregory, Actor Rod Taylor; Mmes. Larry Smith and Frank Patten. The Junior Woman's club is helping with the residential drive. (Stanart Photo)

Auxiliary to

Meet Nov. 2

Walteria WSCS Sets 'Festival' on Nov. 4

WSCS of the Walteria Community Methodist Church will present its an-nual "Harvest Festival" on Saturday Nov. 4 from 12 noon until 7:30.

Booths filled with bazaar Booths filled with bazaar items such as aprons, kitchen gadgets, doll clothes, Christmas decorations, and gift items will be open through the festival hours. There will also be a special table for the children plus a grab bag of items for the small fry.

The b a ke and candy booths will offer homemade delicacies for the pleasure of festival-goers.

Mrs. H. R. Herrera Jr. is general chairman of the Harvest Festival. Other chairmen are Mmes. Frank Jurkovich, children's booth; Hugh Cosby, Christmas decorations; Nils Johnson, bake booth; and Jack Tinkle, candy counter.

Club Hostess

thems will also be a special table for the children plus a grab bag of items for the small fry.

The bake and candy booths will offer homemade delicacies for the pleasure of festival-goers.

Beginning at 5:30 p. m. dinner will be served with a special price for children.

Mrs. Dave Lewis is dinner chairman and is being assisted by Mrs. Ted Zellner.

Mrs. Dave Lewis is dinner chairman and is being assisted by Mrs. Ted Zellner.

Mrs. Backlund and Halloner.

Mrs. Backlund is the club's next hostess.

Fall Program at Torrance Nursery School Under Way

The school year has begun for the Torrance Cooperative Nursery School, and an interesting series of lectures has been planned for the parents of the program. Featured speakers for the first semester include: Mr. Don Bowlus, Oct. 16, Mrs. Robert Campbell, Nov. 9; Mrs. Beth Leonhard, Dec. 14, and Dr. Fitzhugh Dodson of La Pri-

Volunteers Needed To Help Child

A young Harbor City mothers has asked the Volunteers Bureau for volunteers to help her four-year-old boy. Damage in the mid-brain area has affected Kevin's coordination and he is being given "patterning" therapy according to methods developed by the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential.

MOHOMS.

Anyone who can help this child one or more days per week regularly, is asked to contact the Volunteer Bureau, South Bay Harbor, 2008 W. Carson St., Torrance. Harbor View Ladies Auxiliary to the Fleet Reserve Association will meet Thursday, Nov. 2, at 8 p.m., at Ulabrand Hall, 1125 S. Gaf-fey St., San Pedro.

mera Nursery School on Jan.

11. The topics will cover problems of the pre-school child.

The school, located at 4558 W. 182nd St. in Torrance, is sponsored by the Adult Education Dept of the Torrance Unified School District. It functions both as a nursery school and as a parent education workshop. The children participate in a daily program of arts, crafts, music, story-telling and other creative play in the modern nursery school building and well equipped and fenced playground.

The mothers spend one morning a week at the

COSTUME RENTAL SHOP

PRICE—$5 TO $15 RENTAL

SOUTH BAY

ITIZEN OF THE MONTH

For more than 10 years, Carmen Daugherty has made a personal contribution to the happiness and welfare of people who are desperately in need of attention and devotion.

Two days out of every month, Mrs. Daugherty goes to the Bayshore Sanitarium to wash, set and cut the hair of the elderly patients and residents there. For many, she is the sole person who remembers to care. Her gift to these people is more than just a sense of pride and joy in their appearance. In cutting through bonds of loneliness and self depreciation she gives an expression of love that lifts the spirit.

The lesson Mrs. Daugherty demonstrates is that each one of us has some thing to contribute to those in need — if we will only reach out to give it.

GLP GREAT LAKES PROPERTIES, INC.

PARTNERS IN SOUTH BAY PROGRESS