Tartars Face Titans, Saxons, Eagles

The Tartars have posted ome influential victories. some influential victories, but seven times they have been beaten between two and six points. Three of those losses were against Sky League rival Morningside, (16-3) a team that dropped two losses against unbeaten El Segundo (22-0). In the other games that ingly. That is one consolution. The biggest concern about the Tartarn is the fact they lost 7 of their first 18 games after posting a fabulous 33-2 record with virtually the same talent a year ago. There were Bart Johnson who scored 20 points or more in almost every game since his sophore year; Robin Fisher, one of the best all-around little guards in the business; and Rich Kreul, a two-year man whom many coaches speak of as the lad who would make the difference in winning the championship in their own cases son. Although Carpenter had a great year, the departure of these seniors did not figure as a serious handicap for the Tartars. Filling the gap would be JV players Steve Jasper and Grant Galyardt who were accustomed to scoring 15 to 18 points a game in their division. It was a year Coach Boer-ger looked forward to with great anticipation. The team, however, was bugged with indifferences form almost the first day of

After placing second and third in two prior CIF play-offs, motivating the Tartars became an unsuspected difficult challenge. It was like taking them to see the same movie three days in succes-sion...

Torrance opened its season with an irregular, lopsided win over Santa Monica. Two win over Santa Monica. Two games later Morningside caught the Tartars unalert and knocked them out of the Pacific Shores Tournament. The downfall of the team, mixed with disciplinary ma-neuvers and personal disap-pointments, carried into the league campaign eague campaign. Absence of key players forced Coach Boerger to be-come involved in young tal-ent — such as using Alan Brown and Bob Fernley, a pair of inexperienced guards. To them the idea of winning is the important part of sports and they have helped defrost any other ideas. It is not too late for the Tartars to appreciate the im-portance of three good years of basketball for their alma mater. How else can Torrance mater. How else can Torrance High regard itself as the "school of champions" it claims?

'Gundo Wanted Tough Schedule!

Interest in the Torrance-North game Saturday and the Torrance-El Segundo contest next Tuesday is mounting.

North met Torrance in a preseason scrimmage. The Saxons had a good afternoon inasmuch as Tartar Bart Johnson was out of the lineup, but with him Torrance bested North in a tournament game.

Both teams appear to be at their peak of the searight now. son

Torrance, which plays Rolling Hills in a Sky League game Friday, follows its weekend double outing with a maor test at El Segundo three days later.

* * * El Segundo coach Cliff Warren termed his team's 22-0 record "somewhat surprising." He called his 1967 schedule "suicidal" and offered the statement "We fear Torrance more than any other team in the CIF!"

Warren's comments came after his team was again voted number one in the Southland weekly poll, picking up 13 of 14 first place votes.

Torrance (13-7), which finished third in the CIF last year, is rated 10th in this week's poll. "When I prepared our schedule I wanted to play the best," said Warren, "but I had no idea that we would be 22-0 at this stage. Our goal, of course, is to win the CIF but you have to be lucky as well as good to do that. I don't think we are feeling any pressure because of our winning streak," he added.

Of guard Dana Pagett, who has won four tournament MVP awards this year, says Warren: "He is one in a million. He scores when we need points, but he is a most unselfish player. He's a great shooter, averaging 17.1 points per game."

Center John Pleick (6-8) is averaging 20.8 and shooting 66 per cent from the floor while forward Mike McCready (6-3) "stops the opposition's leading scorer." Ed Hora (6-8), a forward, has won two games for Ready for informs Warren.

The installation of new bleachers at North High has interrupted the school's basketball schedule again. Word has been received that the Saxons have had four consecutive games switched. Today's contest with Santa Monica is moved to Samohi.

Friday's non-league game against Mayfair will be at West, followed by Saturday eve's interesting contest at Torrance against the Tartars.

Next Wednesday's Bay League contest with Redondo will also be at Torrance.
