

ANN LANDERS

Roy Is the Big Loser

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who needs somebody to stick up for me. I hope it will be you. My brother Roy is six years old. He is so mean nobody can tell what he will do next.

Dear Sister: While you are at it, shed a few tears for Roy, because he is the one who will be the big loser. Children who grow up without discipline are a problem to society, their families and themselves.

I hope you will show this column to your mother. She needs to have her eyes opened.

Dear Ann Landers: I met a fellow on campus a few weeks ago who really turned me on. We didn't talk much, but there was a certain electricity between us, if you know what I mean.

We went out for coffee a couple of times and everything seemed to click. Then all of a sudden like he dropped off the face of the earth. I didn't hear a word about him. Yesterday one of his close friends told him that I am the spitting image of the girl he used to go with. She died in an accident two years ago. Can this be the reason he has dropped me? Should I try to talk it out with him?—TURNED ON

Dear On: If this is the reason, he has an emotional problem. But it's HIS problem, not yours.

If he has simply lost interest, you will gain nothing by doing the bloodhound bit. Turn yourself off and forget him.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't for the life of me understand why common ordinary housewives write to you and criticize your advice.

People ask for your opinion because they have faith in you. I am sure most people who write have read your writing for years and they feel you can help them. It always burns me up when some dumb bunny from Boise or Yonkers or Dubuque writes in and thinks her ideas are better than yours.

Please print this letter and tell them their two-bit views don't mean anything and to save the stamp.—K.K.

Dear K.K.: Here's your letter but I don't agree with you. I have learned a lot from those "dumb bunnies" from Boise and Yonkers and Dubuque. I hope they never stop writing.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sheriff Expands Program For Release of Prisoners

Expansion of the program of permissive release of prisoners on their written promise to appear in court at a later date was announced today by Sheriff Peter J. Pitches.

Loan Company Names Manager

John E. Cole Jr. has been named assistant vice president and regional manager of the Lincoln Savings and Loan Association Del Amo Torrance regional office at Carson and Hawthorne.

Torrance Hi Grad Makes Dean's List

Stephan T. Turner has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island. A graduate of Torrance High School, Turner is the son of Mrs. Constance M. Turner of 2850 Onrado St.

disorderly conduct-drunk section of the state penal code, will be expanded to include those arrested in assault and battery, disturbance, and petty theft cases.

Violations of vehicle laws and other miscellaneous misdemeanors also will be included, the sheriff said.

"The expansion of this program will encompass the release of persons charged with certain misdemeanor offenses, where prolonged custody prior to their appearance in court would serve no purpose and merely act as a further drain on the taxpayer," Pitches said.

School Aide At Meeting

Participating in a meeting of the California Association of Secondary School Administrators Curriculum Committee in Burlingame last week-end was Haig Marashlian, assistant planning director of the Southern California Regional Occupational Center.

CHECK ENTRY... Deborah Dolen, a fifth grader at Crenshaw Elementary School, and her principal, Hugh Dooley, check over her entry in the school's fifth annual art festival.

POLITICS CHARGED

Reagan Aides Ask Ouster Of Fish-Game Director

By EDWIN S. CAPPS Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO—The partisans in the office of Governor Ronald Reagan, who feel last November's huge vote mandates that all officials of the previous administration must be replaced, apparently have resorted to charges of politics to ease one director out of his position.

This is in the case of Walter T. Shannon, director of fish and game and veteran of 30 years with the department. Shannon served as deputy director under Governor Goodwin J. Knight and during the first year of the administration of Governor Edmund G. Brown. He became director early in 1960.

There are only less than half a dozen directorships in which no changes have been announced and Shannon's has caused somewhat of an impasse. He has received tremendous support for being retained, even from persons or organizations which were his critics during the past six years.

AT ONE time there was a report the lumber industry, as a whole, favored Shannon's ouster because of his activities in enforcing the Forest Practices Act which prevents pollution of streams through logging activities. However, since then, a good part of the lumber industry has announced support for Shannon.

But the support apparently has been of little or no avail. The latest report from Capitol circles is that Shannon would be replaced because he indulged in too much politics during Governor Brown's unsuccessful campaign against Reagan.

This is far from true as Shannon studiously avoided becoming involved in the campaign. Naturally, during the past six years, he had become associated with Brown and attended ceremonial functions with the governor which concerned fish and game projects or activities.

WITH THE exception of several deputy directors, the Reagan administration shows signs of making a complete sweep in the resources agency. Norman B. Livermore Jr. was named as administrator to replace Hugh Fisher and Fisher's staff also has been replaced.

William R. Gianelli was appointed director of water resources, replacing William E. Warne; William Penn Mott, Jr., replaced Fred L. Jones as director of park and recreation and Edward F. Dolder, deputy director, reportedly has been given his walking papers; and James G. Stearns was named director of conservation. Stearns replaced Dr. Ian Campbell who had served on an interim basis since the resignation of DeWitt Nelson.

That left only two directors in the agency from the previous administration — Shannon and Lachlan Richards, director of the new department of harbor and waterfront. Richards received his notice this week that his services no longer would be required.

Reportedly, there have been no decisions as to selection of new directors to replace either Richards or Shannon.

Narcotics Education Plan Urged

A program of narcotics education in the seventh through twelfth grades in Torrance schools has been urged by John Kirby, a candidate for the Torrance Board of Education.

Kirby, speaking before a meeting of the 68th Assembly District Chapter of the United Republicans of California (UROC), also called for strict enforcement of narcotics laws as they apply to juveniles and for permanent expulsion of any violator "not as a matter of punishment but rather for the protection of other students on campus."

He also proposed a pay-as-you-go building program for the school district as opposed to the sale of bonds and suggested that the city take "a good hard look at the four-quarter system for maximum utilization of existing school buildings."

Schools Get Car Engine, PA System

Donations received by the Torrance Unified School District in February included a public address system and a 1955 Oldsmobile engine.

The public address system, to be used for outside assemblies at Victor Elementary School, was donated by the Victor Parent-Teacher Association.

Donor of the car engine, which will be used in the auto shop program at South High School, was Mr. Fred E. Burdette of Los Angeles.

DeMolay Leaders Installed

John H. Glatt, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Glatt of Manhattan Beach, has been installed as master counselor of the Redondo Beach chapter of the Order of DeMolay.

Glatt, a mathematics major at El Camino College, will be assisted by Brett Kyver, senior counselor, and Dean M. Scott, junior counselor.

Quentin H. Cunningham, Worshipful Master of Redondo Lodge 328, sponsor of the DeMolay chapter, was master of ceremonies. Officers and guests were honored at a reception following the installation.

OTHER NEW officers are: Al Brett, chaplain; Doug Woolley, marshal; Lee Astorino, orator; Paul Hauck, senior deacon; Wallace Lott Jr., junior deacon; John Smith, senior steward; Ed Applegate, junior steward; and Sandy Roberts, scribe.

Preceptor stations will be filled by John Everts, Scott Roberts, David Winters, Mike Mayda, David Gardner, Rand Hein, and Chuck Allen.

OTHER appointive officers are: Mike Glatt, standard bearer; Jim Shipley, sentinel; Don Happs, almoner; and John Allen, treasurer.

The installing team included: Casey Coane, installing officer; Doug Freeland, senior counselor; Lee Schultz, junior counselor; Barry Yates, chaplain; Charles Johnson, marshal; and Al McCracken, senior deacon.

NAN CURTIS Assistant Manager

Assistant Manager Appointed

Nan Curtis, a Torrance resident and assistant manager of Security First National Bank, has been assigned to the bank's Del Amo Center branch.

Mrs. Curtis, who lives at 2514 W. 170th St., joined the bank in 1952 as a bookkeeper. A native of Huntington Park, she is a graduate of Washington High School in Los Angeles. Mrs. Curtis has taken courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

She is a member of the Southwest Assistant Managers Business and Professional Woman's Association, and the Golden Gleaner Society.

She and her husband, Jack, are parents of a 7-year-old daughter, Darrylyn.

Men Make Passes Only At Provocative Lasses

I've seen women in nudist camps parade their au naturel state self-consciously — and unmoled — before any number of men. A woman's dignity has nothing to do with the type of clothes she wears or the lack of them.

Some women can carry dignity in its highest form while wearing only a G-string, while there are others draped in Paris gowns and furs who inevitably get at least verbal passes.

COUNT MARCO

I find the ego of some of you women appalling. Ego is often akin to ignorance. How dare some of you women cry out to me that the only reason you look so shabby and unkempt is because, should you do what comes naturally, i.e., dress with flair and imagination, ALL men would cast themselves at your feet, steal you away from your husband and family or worse!

Mon Dieu! It's either the greatest case of wishful thinking on record or you're just plain stupid. A bit of both probably. Like this poor mixed-up creature who writes:

"My husband told me to write to you. It seems I attract men without trying to or even wanting to. In fact, I really try hard to be unattractive, because I don't want to make my husband jealous. My husband says I must have sex appeal.

"I tried hard to think it was my imagination but when ever I go with other women, or my husband or my son, men flirt with me. The Bible says: 'Cause no man to lust after thee. This is a sin. I am a Christian woman.

"I can't figure out why men flirt with me. I don't do anything to encourage it. Please tell me what my problem is or what I can do."

There is, my poor mixed-up dear, a great deal of difference between lusting and admiring. Men have enough trouble without the added accusation that every time they admire a pretty ankle they're lusting after the body attached to it.

Undoubtedly, there are types of clothes and make-up that encourage lusting. These marks of dress and manner are as old and as recognizable as the trade they advertise, and that's pretty old. For example, a tight, clinging, mindress and an overload of make-up can be interpreted only one way.

On the other hand, there are many women who could be groomed to the height of unapproachable chic and elegance and still some men would throw a pass at them because of some unconscious mannerism or coquettish "come hither and flop on the nearest mattress with me" look.

A spark of admiration in a man's eye is a woman's reward for achieving his approval. It can hardly be considered lust. Desire, yes; lust, no.

And breathes there a woman with soul so dead who never to herself hath said, "I want to be desired by all men but loved by only one." If such there breathes, go mark her well.

Press-Herald Sunday Crossword

(Answer on Page A-6)

ACROSS

- 1—A successor of Mohammed
6—Healed
11—Antic
16—Sword
21—Place of combat
22—Close by (poet.)
23—Musical drama
24—Foreigner
25—Card game
26—Blights
28—Repulsive
30—Brother of Odin
31—New Zealand native
32—To recede
34—Tardy
36—Appear
37—River of France
38—Doomed N.Y. Opera House
40—Food fish of Mexico
42—Male turkeys
44—Seethe
46—Nahoor sheep
47—Large bundle
48—To hide
51—Cooky
53—Compound ether
55—Smoker's water-pipe
59—Rodents
60—Group of three
62—Ohio city
65—Colorado ski resort
66—Assent
68—Disregard
70—Six
71—Covered with frosting
72—Contents
73—Urial
74—Incense
76—Legal charge
77—Malay gibbon
78—Assists
79—Sedate
81—Nour. suffix
82—Grape refuse
83—Bridle bit
85—Staunch
86—Dwarf
88—Hotel accommodation
89—"... Grows in Brooklyn"
90—Plunder
91—Aria

DOWN

- 1—Entered Promised Land with Joshua
2—Island off Venezuela
3—French article
4—Hotel
5—To be wanting
6—Bright star in Gemini
7—World organization
8—Thing in law
9—Consumes
10—Tree of moisture
11—A remark
12—Wallaba
13—Fondle
14—American Indians
15—City of Wisconsin
16—Conserve
17—Beverage
18—Prefix: twice
19—Thrust back
20—Growing out
21—Mend
29—Obtains
33—At
35—Comes out into view
38—Being born
39—Place of trade
41—Inquired
43—Asterisks
45—To put on guard
47—Inclination
48—Completing
49—Preposition
125—Quits
130—Counterfeit
131—Of a continent
133—To deserve
135—Range of Rocky mts.
138—Mr. Sullivan
139—Rotating part of elec.
140—Salty scollection
142—Danube delta island
143—Abounding
145—Part of chimney
147—Good French
150—Old French coin
152—Weight of India
153—Abstract being
155—Soft food
158—Battalion
163—Cent (abbr.)
163—Musical syllable

Grid for crossword puzzle with numbers 1-163 indicating starting points for words.