

Kanine Korner

By Francis X. Lohmann

It's Patsy time again. The 18th annual Patsy awards will be presented Saturday afternoon, June 1, at Universal City Studios in North Hollywood.

Winners will be selected from some 20,000 animals which appeared in AHA (American Humane Association) supervised productions during 1967. All of the nominees had "starring" roles in feature films or first-run television productions.

The Craven Award will be given for an outstanding performance by an animal actor which has not been featured in a "starring" role.

A new award will also be presented this year for the first time to honor the best animal performance in television commercials and advertising campaigns.

THE MOTION picture nominees include: Baron (dog) in Dr. Doolittle; Ben (bear) in Gentle Giant; Chee Chee (chimpanzee) in Dr. Doolittle; Po (dog) in Eight on the Lam; Polynesia (macaw) in Dr. Doolittle; Sir Tom (mountain lion) in The Cat; Sophie (sea lion) in Dr. Dolittle; and Storm (dog) in Luv.

From television the nominees are: Arnold (pig) in Green Acres; Ben (bear) in Gentle Ben; Clarence (lion) in Kaktari; Higgins (dog) in Petticoat Junction; Judy (chimpanzee) in Daktari; Junior (dog) in Hondo; Lassie (dog) in Lassie; and Lord Nelson (dog) in Please Don't Eat the Daisies.

THE PATSY awards honor animal owners and trainers, producers, directors and studios for meeting high humane standards in the presentation of animals for films and television. The awards alert people throughout the free world to humane considerations for all living creatures.

The first Patsy award went to Francis, the talking mule, as motion picture Animal Top Star of the Year for 1950. Last year's winners were Elsa, the lovable lion featured in Born Free, and Judy, the chimp, from the Daktari television series.

Motion picture, television, and pet columnists vote in this annual spectacular animal event, the Academy and Emmy awards of the animal kingdom.

BOWSER BROWNSINGS: Should you need the services of a veterinarian in an emergency in the event your own vet is unavailable, call DU-

5-7249 and someone will be pleased to refer you to a DVM in your area. This is a 24-hour service and is wholly supported by the veterinarians in your community. Keep this number handy at all times; it may some day save the life of your beloved dog.

A king-size bark to Margaret Hall of Inglewood, who added still another chore to her busy doggie schedule by embracing the duo posts of publicity chairman and second vice-president of Southwest Dog Obedience Club.

"THE QUICK brown fox jumped over the lazy dog's back" were the first words carried by the hot line between the U. S. and Soviet Union. . . . Pup, Pekingese pet of Mrs. Marietta Gunn of Modesto, Calif., likes to "baby-sit" and has raised a duck, a goose, and a rabbit. How about that? A record total of 105 Greyhounds competed in the Flagler International Race.

Many of my readers have asked where they could secure a St. Roch medal for their dog. St. Roch is the patron saint of dogs and seldom is the esteemed knight of the church ever pictured without his beloved dog. I have located a source of supply—Frank Wells, 6100 Fountain Ave., Hollywood, Calif., and priced at only a dollar each.

The first aid kit for your dog should include a pair of tweezers, a pair of pliers, straight scissors, a rectal thermometer, a teaspoon, a tablespoon, and some cotton. For dressings you might buy a container of cotton balls, a roll of cotton. For medicines, stock ammonia, aspirin, brandy, 3 per cent hydrogen peroxide, bicarbonate of soda, mineral oil, salt, tea, vaseline, baby oil and baby talcum powder. Any of these items in your doggie's first aid kit could some day save his precious life.

BREED OF THE WEEK—Miniature Schnauzer: Relatively speaking, the Miniature Schnauzer is one of the newer breeds, in existence for about 50 years. He made his show debut as a distinct breed in his native Germany in 1899. The Miniature's large er cousins, the Standard and Giant Schnauzers, hail from the same area.
