

Coffee Break

By Adeline Daley

Since we already have been reminded numerous times "Why Johnny can't read"—or, for that matter, add, subtract, spell or know the capital of Latvia—I'm waiting for a report on "Why Mommy Can't Relax."

How can she, when if she isn't involved with homework or the PTA, she's busy reading articles on the best way her first grader can qualify for a Fulbright scholarship or at least get into college in 1980. Although at times I'm willing to "pay each grade as it comes," to borrow from the vernacular of the coaching profession.

You see, they keep talking about all of the "Rapid Learners," but omit to add that there are an equal amount of "Rapid Forgetters."

On one hand, you will have articles, such as, "Don't Demand Too Much Performance!" The theory being that students will become "hostile, unhappy and unproductive due to nagging parents." My kids love these and cut them out for our bulletin board, especially around report card time which has been known in this household as "Bad Day at Black Rock."

But if a parent were expecting to be spared guilt for a "laissez faire" attitude toward their children's education, fear not. For most of the time parents are exposed to advertisements in magazines which will show a picture of a sad, little dunce, sitting in the corner of the classroom because his parents didn't buy him a 30-volume set of encyclopedia.

The whole idea is for parents to keep their child ahead of Johnny-who-lives-down-the-street. In fact, Johnny-who-lives-down-the-street is the most superior kid in America because he is also healthier for his mother buys him the right brand of corn flakes, bread and vitamins.

Then there's the advertisement which shows the little girl standing on her tiptoes, reaching for a book off the top shelf, with the caption stating, "At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books." I'm impressed because I have known third graders who have trouble with books intended for four-year olds. And it looks as if this toddler is reaching for the Canterbury Tales by Chaucer, even if it's illustrated by Disney.

But the idea behind this ad is that it is never too early to start preparing your child for the educational race to success.

I figure if this keeps up a parent can expect to see an advertisement suggesting that you buy your child a slide-rule—to use as a teething ring.

And you can bet that bound volumes of Shakespeare will come out cloth-bound—in a washable fabric so that mother can wipe off those spills from the high chair.

I even see a change in the little lunch pails that grammar-school kids tote with them. Instead of their favorite TV characters, I expect tomorrow's educational lunch pails to carry pictures of Huntley and Brinkley or Walter Cronkite. And as a mother, I'd like my children to be the first to have an "Eric Sevareid Lunch Pail." If not these, the panel from "Meet the Press." And why not a "Lawrence Spivak Coloring Book?"

So, as they say, "what's a mother to do?" I know what I'm going to do—start relaxing, even if it means my kids will bring home report cards which ask me to bear in mind that "nice guys finish last."

Beta Sigma Phi Council

Breakfast Sunday

Xi Epsilon Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will host the bi-monthly breakfast meeting of the Southern California Council next Sunday morning, May 26, at 10 a.m. at the Elks Club, 4101 E. Willow, Long Beach.

Theme chosen for the event will be "Spring Time," reports Mrs. Margaret Byrne, chairman, who will be assisted by Miss Alice Gordon. Mrs. Grace Barham, chapter president, will welcome the guests and Miss Roberta Fayle is taking reservations. Mrs. Alvy Moore, Southern California Council president, will preside at the business meeting and give a report on the recent Beta Sigma Phi convention held in Los Angeles.

In a candlelight installation ceremony, Mrs. Moore will seat Mrs. A. W. Anderson of Long Beach Council as the new Southern California Council president.

A large number of Beta Sigma Phis from the South Bay area will be in attendance. Torrance chapters represented include Phi Zeta Rho, Alpha Alpha Omega, Mu Omicron, and Xi Zeta Lambda.

Mrs. Alan S. Moore of Torrance, sponsor of the South Bay Area Council, will be in attendance.
