

Frantz Outlines Plans For 'Positive Program'

Positive government action is needed to solve the problems of the 17th Congressional District, according to Lynne Frantz, Democratic candidate for the Congressional post.

In a fourth position paper, issued today, Frantz discussed what he calls the need for a positive role of government to meet the demands of the economic and social life of the area during the 1970s.

An example he gave is the seizure of American tuna fishing vessels by South American nations. Frantz said something must be done to get a bill out of the Senate which would deny foreign aid to nations which are seizing our tuna fishing vessels. But, Frantz said, this is only a stop gap measure. What is more important is for our State Department to call a conference of the Organization of American States to face the problems of fishing rights on the high seas and the preservation of fishing resources.

FRANTZ also is concerned with the balance of payments problem and believes positive action can be taken to solve this problem through the revitalization of our maritime shipping industry. He said only 7 per cent of our exports now are carried on American flag ships. If this were increased to 30 per cent, he said, the balance of payments problem would be solved. Such action requires a cabinet level post on Maritime Affairs. Such a proposal now is bottled up in a Senate Committee. That bill, Frantz said, must be reported out of committee and approved by the Congress.

Another local problem is the decline in the number of defense contracts awarded California firms. Frantz said the aerospace workers in the 17th Congressional District are the most experienced and have the best technical skills of any in the country. He thinks the federal government could save money by awarding more contracts in California instead of using such contracts as "poverty programs" for other areas. "This is not the purpose of our defense program, to stimulate the economy of low income areas. Poverty programs have their role, but not at the expense of our national defense," he said.

FRANTZ said he supports federal aid to local beautification programs to clean up our cities and develop recreational areas. He believes such a program is needed for the Wilmington area where dumps are an open sore and children suffer because they have no parks in which to play.

"We must do something about such open sores as dumps adjacent to residential neighborhoods and the odor and fumes from industry. The residents of these areas become very depressed when their local government fails to meet their needs. The federal government must assist local government in facing and meeting these problems," he said.

Frantz said the most important federal program in the new city of Carson is to build a post office. As the city and the California State College, Dominguez Hills, students. Frantz believes business and industry would be happy to be a partner in such programs to develop young men and women to handle the skilled jobs available in area industries.

And, the working mother, he said, needs better child care facilities. Frantz believes there must be child care centers staffed with trained child guidance personnel. "One of the most discouraging problems for working mothers obligated to help support families is finding qualified babysitters at a price the mothers can afford to pay," he said.

Finally, Frantz said he believes the special language skills of nationality groups in the district, as well as in the rest of the nation, are not being utilized in the Foreign Service.
