

Cigaret Taxes Tempt Chiselers

Cigaret taxes, needed for many state projects, have become a temptation to those seeking to pocket the proceeds from contraband cigarettes.

Smokers may help state authorities to nip this practice in the bud by examining the bottom of each cigarette pack for the required tax seal placed on the pack when taxes are paid to the state.

There are two varieties of tax seals. One is a small square decal with black printing and pink overprinting. The other is a rectangular blue ink impression. Both bear the words, "Tax paid, 20 cigarettes."

Any pack not bearing the seal may be reported to the State Board of Equalization, 333 E. Walnut St., Pasadena. The board is currently at tempting to develop a workable enforcement program, contacting local law enforcement agencies. The Torrance Police Department has joined in the effort.

The temptation to chisel on cigarette taxes has been great since the tax was raised to 10 cents per pack last October, according to Samuel S. Taylor, board supervising auditor.

When New York state cigarette taxes jumped to 16 cents per pack, the Wall Street Journal theorized that organized crime was responsible for selling untaxed cigarettes "under the counter" and collecting the profit.
