Rooftop Spree Ends in Arrest

Three area youths seen on the roof of Southwest Savings and Loan, 1603 Cravens Ave., were arrested late Monday night on suspicion of burglary.

Picked up after a witness tipped off police were Joseph M. Horvat, 20, of 1707 W. 247th Place, Lomita; Keith E. (Jess) Jester, 19, of 24200 Walnut Lane, Lomita; and a 17-year-old Lomita boy.

County supervisors have approved and accepted a right of entry permit needed in connection with a completed Wilmington area storm drain project. Supervisor Burton W. Chace has announced.

The permit is being granted by the County Flood Control District by Jomor Investment Company and Charles M. Weinberg and affects a parcel of land near Lomita Boulevard and Pacific Coast Highway, west of the Harbor Freeway.

Chace said it will be used during the cleaning out of material from the water-course and depositing of the material on the existing levee banks on the project.

Chace said the completed storm drain bond issue approved by County voters in 1952.

No funds are involved in the transaction, Chace added.

Mrs. James Van Oppen of the League of Women Voters, however, supported SCAG, stating that the group provides the forum municipalities need to discuss regional problems.

TORRANCE is one of the few South Bay area cities that is not a member of SCAG.

Several citizens urged the council to purchase all the land needed for the 52-acre park now because they believe land prices will continue to go up. Cost of the land remaining to be purchased is about $1,248,670. A 1964 state recreation bond makes the city eligible for $236,483 to help cover that cost; however, the state money may only be obtained for a regional park of 50 acres or more.

THE CITY'S application for state funds was approved by the Board of Supervisors Tuesday, hours before Torrance councilmen considered the proposal.

Another $624,335 in federal Open Space Grant money is available to the city for purchase of the additional acreage.

Since councilmen voted to accept both the state and federal funds, the city will have to pay only $387,852 from the general fund. These funds will not cover the cost of development, however.

The largest park now owned by the city is seven acres.

WILCOX JOINED the Torrance Family YMCA in 1956 when the programs were housed in the famed "tin barn" on Washington Street. He has directed the "Y" throughout its growth from a "one-man" operation to its present community program.

Under Wilcox's leadership, the YMCA has constructed facilities which are regarded as among the most modern in the nation. More than 5,000 families participate in a variety of programs—making it the second largest branch YMCA in the nation.

IN ADDITION to his work for the "Y", Wilcox has been active in numerous community and civic groups, including the Torrance Area Chamber of Commerce and the Educational Council of Torrance.

Wilcox, a native of Oregon, attended schools in Alhambra, where he first became active in the YMCA. He was graduated from Whittier College and came to Torrance from the North Hollywood YMCA.

William Poser is chairman of the committee planning Sunday's open house.

Job Corps Volunteers Needed

The Volunteer Bureau, South Bay Harbor, local sponsoring agency of JACS (Joint Action in Community Service), will present a film Thursday at 7:30 p.m. showing how area citizens can participate in helping young Job Corps trainees become assets to their communities.

The film will be shown at the Volunteer Bureau Headquarters, 2008 W. Carson St., Suite 211.

Mrs. Charles Bradley of Torrance, volunteer coordinator, will be present to further explain how JACS volunteers, preferably men, can provide guidance to the dozens of young men who have completed Job Corps training and are now returning home with new skills and attitudes.

No financial aid or direct employment is expected from JACS volunteers but the personal interest of responsible and mature citizens is invaluable in encouraging these young men, Mrs. Bradley said.

... Mail

Backlund told the Press-Herald that he has been directed to submit any proposals for the elimination of Saturday deliveries by Sept. 1.

The economy drive already has restricted the hiring of new employees—the local post office may hire only three new employees for every four who leave the department.

Also affected are extensions of delivery on city routes. Backlund said no plans are being made to provide mail service to new housing subdivisions and apartment projects.

Coed Wins Balanced Power Design Award

Marjorie Lee Koch, an Art Center College of Design student, has been honored as the winner of the 1968 Balanced Power Architectural Scholarship contest that drew 460 entries from 31 Southland Colleges.

During a special luncheon at the gas company's downtown Los Angeles headquarters, the interior design student was presented a $500 savings bond. The Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Companies, along with the American Institute of Architects, are co-sponsors of the annual competition.

In addition to the $500 bond, Miss Koch received the gas companies' $1,000 scholarship to be used at an architectural college of her own choice. The scholarship will be administered by the AIA.

Runners-up to Koch in the contest were James Barry, Visalia (College of the Sequoias); Paul Kawasaki, Los Angeles (California State College at Los Angeles); and Jon Sasaki, Costa Mesa (Orange Coast College). Each received $100 bonds.

The Balanced Power Architectural Contest, which was initiated in 1965, is open to students from colleges which do not confer degrees in architecture.

This year the problem involved the design of a mountain vacation cabin for a married couple and their 17-year-old son.

Runners-up to Koch in the contest were James Barry, Visalia (College of the Sequoias); Paul Kawasaki, Los Angeles (California State College at Los Angeles); and Jon Sasaki, Costa Mesa (Orange Coast College). Each received $100 bonds.
