The long distance runner.

Here are some reasons why the Renault 10 keeps running and running and running:
4 wheel disc brakes. (The ones the racing cars use.) Disc brakes can withstand heavy braking without fade.
Anti-corrosive dipping process. Every Renault 10 gets itself dunked in an anti-corrosive solution. (Most cars get only a partial dip and some don't even get their feet wet.)
5 main bearing engine. For longer engine life, we support the crankshaft at 5 points. (Most economy cars have only 3.)
Welded body. The body of the Renault 10 is welded. (You never have to tighten a welded joint.)
And 35 miles to a gallon. Only one tankful of gas will take the Long Distance Runner on a long distance run.
