WAILUA BEACH, HAWAII — There are more short-term rent houses in Hawaii now, and though prices seem plenty stiff, it beats hotel living with a family of four or more. Beach-front furnished houses on Oahu (Honolulu) go for about $1,000 a month.

On this island of Kauai—(and pleasanter living to my thinking)—I ran into three: One at $350, one at $400 and one at $600 with maid service.

A sea mail subscription for a few months to the Honolulu Advertiser will give you shopping time in the classified ads. And for Kauai, you want a first-class mail subscription to The Garden Island, Lihue, Kauai, Hawaii.

All these ads give only the phone number. But Hawaii is three hours earlier than the West Coast, six hours earlier than the East. You could telephone when the cheap night rates are on and while Hawaii people are still working.

"Can we get flower leis when we fly back from Hawaii? Are they allowed in the U.S. mainland? And how long will they last?"

Take a taxi to Honolulu airport, and tell the driver to stop at the lei sellers' huts. (There are a dozen on the way to the building.) What they sell you will pass Agricultural inspection, yes. Ask the lei seller what will last best. Good lasting leis are carnation and orchid. Three to four days if you keep them in the refrigerator when you aren't wearing them.

"I am flying to Hawaii where my husband is in the service. Will I be able to warm formula for a six-months old baby?"

Yes, they can warm bottles. And when you buy your ticket, you should tell them you have a baby and that you want the bulkhead seats. On the 707, they can snap a baby bed onto the bulkhead. Ask again at the airport when you check in. The word from ticket office to airport doesn't always get through.

Now they'll also tell you they have bottled baby food aboard. Bring your own. Sometimes they do, sometimes the don't.

"We have a six-year-old grandson and would like to bring a small present from Hawaii, not too bulky..."

A coconut hat—the kind they weave out of green palm leaves? It dries out brown eventually but can still be worn. About $3 at the airport florist shop. May be cheaper at the Waikiki drugstores or the International Market off Kalakaua Avenue.

"We are planning a driving trip with a rented car in Europe next year. Do you think we will have a lot of trouble taking our children, three and four?"

I hauled my children all over Europe at that age and found driving the easiest way. They seemed to go to sleep in the back seat as soon as we started driving.

You should have a Thermos bottle of water—there aren't gas stations with fountains and Coke machines every few miles. I never had trouble getting hotel maids for baby sitters in the evening. And you can find laundromats most places in Europe now. If you can't it's because local help is so cheap the local women do the washing cheaper than the machine.

"There's some famous restaurant, typically Spanish, in Madrid. I think it was in a novel..."

I guess that would be Botin's. It's in the last scene in Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises" and has been famous ever since. A good home-made bread and lechon, roast suckling pig.

Somebody else has a similar named restaurant. And taxi drivers will sometimes try to saw this off on you. (I imagine they're getting a cut.) Have the taxi driver take you to the big square called Plaza Mayor. In the far left corner, there are two restaurants. Walk down the stairs behind them and you'll be in a dim lit, winey, garlicky little street. Walk along this street about a block, and you'll find Botin's on the left side. Book a table by phone in summer. It's popular.

If you can't get in, try those restaurants on the corner. El Pulpito and Meson de la Corregidora. Or right at the bottom of the stairs, Las Cuevas de Luis Candelos. Same kind of food. And at Meson and El Pulpito you can eat at outside tables.

Tartar Teen Talk By Betsy Tomita

Torrance High School started the school year by welcoming 659 new freshmen at "Freshmen Orientation," Sept. 11. This new crop of freshmen is the largest class Torrance High has ever had.

New and returning students saw the changes Torrance High is undergoing on the first day of school Thursday, Sept. 12. Construction of a new library and an English and fine arts building is now under way.

Seniors raised approximately $400 toward their prom from their spaghetti dinner last Friday night. The class of '70 served more than 600 guests all the spaghetti they could eat. Following the spaghetti dinner, Tartars caught a glimpse of the 1968 football squad, drill team, band, and pep units at the Maroon and Gray game. ASB card sales started last Monday. Price of ASB card is $3.50, which allows students admission to all the games and other activities.

Election time for the freshman is near. Freshmen interested in running for a class officer may pick up their applications in the activities office.

Torrance High extends its greetings to Miss Amara Navaret, who is this year's foreign exchange student from Thonburi, Thailand. Miss Barbara Moffitt was Torrance High's "American Abroad" to the Philippines this summer.

Governor To Visit Area Club

A. Ronald Button of Hollywood, governor of the local Rotary district, will visit the Torrance Rotary Club Tuesday, Sept. 24, it was announced by Dr. George Porter, president of the club.

Button, one of 288 Rotary Club district governors, is responsible for 35 clubs in his district.

A member and past president of the Hollywood Rotary Club, Button is an attorney and a former treasurer of the State of California. He was elected to office at a Rotary International convention in Mexico City in May.

Cal State Classes Set
