Profile: Mrs. Kenneth Watts Her Life Changed After Bout With Tuberculosis

It's a long way from a tuberculosis bed to the status of most active woman in the community, but Mrs. Kenneth (Polly) Watts has made the trek.

Mrs. Watts, a five-year member of the Torrance Board of Education and recipient of Torrance's "Woman of the Year" award, was born the daughter of a dentist in Cambridge, Neb.

Her family moved to Long Beach when she was seven years old. She attended Wilson High School, where she won a scholarship to the University of California, but elected instead to go to Long Beach City College.

Her college education was cut short, however, when she was 19. Tuberculosis confined her to bed for more than three years.

"That really hurt," she reports, "because that's when a girl feels most like getting out and going—I know that's true with my own daughters."

After shaking the disease, she made a resolution.

"I vowed, after three years of inactivity, never to be static again—I would stay as busy as possible."

She has certainly done that. Married to world-famous sail maker Kenneth Watts, she has kept busy both in his business and on the school board. She has two daughters: Laurie, a 17-year old senior at South High School; and Caroline, 19, who is attending the College of Wooster in Ohio.

Mrs. Watts married Ken in 1947—and claims she hooked him in true-to-form female fashion.

"I was employed by the South Coast Co. at the time," she recalls, "and my company—which made boats for the service during the war—was switching back to the pleasure-boat line. Since they needed sails, it was my job to wangle them out of Ken. I guess I wangled more than sails."

POLLY WATTS

Mrs. Watts also adds the "woman's touch" to the school board, and will continue to do so at least until her term ends in 1971. She feels that a woman is needed on the board.

"Many people who call in with problems for the board—especially women—are reluctant to communicate their problems to a gruff businessman. But they feel free to talk to another woman; it makes good sense to keep a female on the board," she asserts.

She has been successful in helping to enact such school district programs as remedial reading, a departmentalized system for seventh and eighth grades, and vocational education. However she claims the credit should go to the parents of the district's students.

"This is a young community," she says, "and one that is interested in education as a valuable tool."

Many school boards are often at odds with the school district administration on some approaches to problems and programs, and Torrance is no exception. But these differences, in the final analysis, are incon-

Flu Linked To Another Area Death

A case of flu may have contributed to the death of a 56-year-old Torrance housewife.

Dead on arrival at Little Company of Mary Hospital was Ruth Waldorf, 2421 W. 227th St., Apt. 19.

The victim's husband, Vinton Waldorf, told police his wife had been suffering from the flu and a kidney ailment. He went into the bedroom to check on her about 12:10 a.m. and was unable to wake her.
