Nurse Is Prepared for Any Emergency Anytime

From emergency care of a little boy with an eraser in his ear, to a businessman with a cardiac arrest, Registered Nurse Mrs. Inez Hanwell, Emergency Room supervisor at South Bay Hospital, keeps busy helping people in need.

Her role in patient care has changed "remarkably in recent years." "Specialization in medicine has altered many of the traditional concepts of the function of emergency service," she said. "The hospital is very clearly emerging as a community health center with an increase in the number of patients seen each year."

THE NURSE continued that "the public knows that hospitals are places where they may go when they are sick or injured and they come at any hour of day or night with any complaint, counting on us to render prompt, courteous attention."

"People have become much more enlightened about health matters and often any illness in the public's way of thinking is an emergency." Personally, she likes the fast pace and lack of routine in solving immediate crises.

The Emergency Room at South Bay Hospital is attended by a physician 24 hours a day, with 13 nurses, LVNs and technicians making up a team of concerned professionals, highly qualified to meet any health problem.

OVER 1,200 patients per month flow through the Emergency Room at the Redondo Beach hospital. "We admit over 100 of these into the hospital from the Emergency Department," Mrs. Hanwell said.

"South Bay Hospital is used extensively in the beach city area for traffic accidents, as well as the day-to-day emergencies for which residents need professional health care," she emphasized.

"As nurses, we never send a person away on the basis that he is not an emergency case. All persons requesting care are seen by the physician to determine the extent of his injury or illness.

"A BIG PART of our job is anticipating the patient's questions and being prepared to answer him in a way which will ease his anxiety in these moments of stress."

Mrs. Hanwell has held her present position at South Bay Hospital for eight years, having been formerly associated with Allegheny Hospital in Pennsylvania. She lives with her husband and two daughters in Palos Verdes.

Area Man Wins Drama Award

John O'Rourke, of 4717 Avenue B, has been named recipient of the James J. Gill Award for outstanding work in the field of dramatics at the commencement exercises of the University of San Francisco June 1.
